Fairly Peaceful May 1.
Children and Mothers.
The Party Is On.
The Highest Building.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MAY 1, WHICH is labor's day in Europe, devoted to the wrongs of the proletariat, passed off quite peacefully abroad, VERY peacefully at home.

There were slightly unpleasant demonstrations here and there aboard, one policeman shot in Berlin, one killed and 17 hurt in Barcelona, most agitated part of Spain.

The red flag was waving.

Russia shut down work completely to celebrate in a great May Day celebration the apparent success of the five-year plan.

Here it was business as usual, but business, as is usual in a depression and not too exciting.

YESTERDAY, AS Mrs. Aida de Costa Breckenridge reminds you, was also Children's Day, devoted to their health.

Sixteen million children under six years of age, in the United States, represent the United States of the future. What happens to them will happen to the United States. Whatever is good for them is good for the United States.

Twenty-seven million one hundred thousand children are in our elementary and secondary schools and kindergartens. If the government could take as much and as successful an interest in young children as it takes in young calves, pigs and colts, through the Agricultural Department, millions of children that now die would live.

AND AS FOR the mothers of American children, after we have finished taking care of our factories, and other "sources of production," some attention might be paid to the mothers. The White House conference on child health and protection showed the death rate among mothers in this country to be higher than in 25 of the other largest nations in the world. It is higher than in any other civilized country.

Fifteen thousand mothers died in childbirth in 1929, and 80,000 infants were born so weak that their lives lasted less than a month on the average. The majority of these deaths could be prevented, and preventing them would be worth while.

THE PARTY is on, politically speaking. Gov. Roosevelt, who expects to be nominated by the Democrats in 1932, and very probably will be nominated, attacks President Hoover in the good old way.

HE SAYS President Hoover's administration is "timorous," says our national administration is geared to the slow pace of 50 years ago, and the people look to the Democratic party to lead the way back to basic principles.

ANYBODY MIGHT be a little "timorous" carrying responsibility for the country's welfare in the slump following a war, with its killing of millions and its spending of billions.

In one respect we may congratulate ourselves, as Mr. Frederick H. Ecker remarked yesterday. We have come through two years of hard times, with conditions such as have not been known since 1873. And it has not been necessary, anywhere, to call out army, militia or police.

YESTERDAY'S NEW YORK event was the formal opening of the Empire State Building.

President Hoover pressed a button in Washington that turned on the light of the world's tallest structure, at Thirty-fourth street and Fifth avenue.

Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, was there to make a speech, and be photographed. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith presided at the formal opening, with two of his little granddaughters to help him. He is the head man of the building.

Mr. Ecker, head of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, was there, also a head man, holding a mortgage of more than $25,000,000.

Many "real estaters," including the far-famed Fred Brown, were there, wondering how many tenants the new building would take out of their older buildings.

It was interesting to see signs, electrically lighted, reading "seventh to one hundred and second stories."

The building is 1,240 feet high, 240 feet higher than the Eiffel Tower, in Paris, more than twice the height of the Tower of Babel, with more languages spoken near it.

CAPT. FRANK HAWKS, champion American flier, with no rival in sight, having broken the world's record from London to Rome, from Rome to Paris, and from Paris to London, has now broken the record from London to Dublin. Having done that, for a little more exercise he flew 400 miles around Ireland in two hours. That's an American representative worth while.

DURING THE year ending June 30, foreign nations will pay the United States on account of war debts and interest $236,062,000, a good deal of money. But it is a small drop in the bucket. We have 6,000,000 men idle. Their time is worth $5 a day. If they were working their earnings would amount to 9,000 million dollars a year ($9,000,000,000).

The big problem is to get back to work. How can it be done? There is a chance for wisdom.

Queen Risks Life for Sick Son

HELEN TAKEN ILL AT BOY'S BEDSIDE

Royal Mother Inoculated As She Refuses to Leave Crown Prince's Sickroom

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 2. — (AP.) — Although stricken with a slight attack of fever, Queen Helen today hovered over the bedside of Crown Prince Michael, who has diptheria.

The mother was given an injection of anti-toxin to protect her. She scoffed at her indisposition, which was a consequence of the protective treatment, and refused to leave the boy. The English governess whom the lad has known through infancy also was treated with anti-toxin.

TEMPERATURE DROPS

Physicians expressed the belief that Michael was out of danger. His temperature dropped from 104 degrees to 101.3.

The sudden illness of their only child was described in court circles as a strong inducement to end the estrangement of King Carol and his Princess. They have conversed several times in the anti-chamber of the sickroom and the monarch has telephoned for news of the boy's condition at nearly every hour of the day. He has been warned against further visits because of the danger of infection.

Queen Helen has steadfastly refused to leave the 9-year-old child. Although physicians have warned the Queen of the danger of contagion, she has only shaken her head and remained near her son. She asked:

"What is life to me? I have only one child. My place is at his bedside."

PARKE BOOKS FACE AUDIT BY CITY

Food Deals to Be Scanned; Costly Contracts Hidden From Quiz, Evans Charges

An audit of the transactions of the L. H. Parke Company, of Philadelphia, with the City of Pittsburgh, is to be made early next week, City Controller James P. Kerr said today. A representative of Price, Waterhouse & Co., auditors, participating in the dual audit of the Department of Supplies, plans to go to Philadelphia, probably Monday, to make the examination, Kerr said.

J. M. C. White, manager of Price, Waterhouse & Co., informed Controller Kerr that the report of the audit was being prepared and probably would be in his hands about the middle of next week.

CITIZENS' AUDIT STILL ON

The Main & Co. audit for the citizens committee, being conducted independently of the City Controller's udit, is still in progress.

The Parke company has figured prominently in the investigation of the Department of Supplies, which already has resulted in the summary dismissal of Director Bertram L. Succop. It is alleged that during the tenure of office of Succop supplies of foodstuffs were purchased from the Parke company, although it was seldom the low bidder.

Several times during the investigation the Parke company has offered to open its books for inspection, but recently refused permission to Main & Co., Citizens' Committee auditors.

CHECK ON EVANS CHARGE

Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineer, is checking the records today as a result of the assertion of Henry Oliver Evans that 211 contracts were left out of the tabulation presented by the Department of Public Works to show the percentages of increase in final costs over contract awards since June, 1928.

Where the Department of Public Works, in an exhibit presented near the close of the investigation, declared there were 481 contracts with a percentage of increased quantities of 7.6 per cent, Evans lists a large number of con-

GANG CHIEF WANTED IN RACKETEER SLAYING

'Mike De Pike' Burned to Death Following Break With Booze Syndicate

International News Service.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Arrest Al Capone!

That was the order issued today by Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office, after establishing that the charred body of a man found in an ice house pyre near Barrington was that of "Mike de Pike" Heitler, notorious vice racket leader here for 38 years.

Roche declared that Heitler's murder came as a result of his break with the West Side Capone booze and vice syndicate.

Detectives with information that the gang chieftain was making the rounds of the cabarets early today were scouring the night haunts of Cicero and Chicago.

EIGHT AIDES SEIZED

In one series of raids last night, a squad under Lieut. William Blaul crashed through the doors of Capone's private suite at the Lexington Hotel on the South Side and arrested four of the gangster's armed aides. They were:

Phil D'Andrea, Capone's bodyguard; Tony Capezio, "circus gang leader;" Lewis, brother of "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, and Fred Petilo.

In ordering the arrest of Capone, Roche declared the mystery surrounding the identity of the torch victim had been solved. Roche seized documents in the Heitler home, which were believed to contain evidence of political-criminal alliance.

It was believed the papers may reveal a murder motive.

WILL EXHUME BODY

Heitler's disappearance was noted yesterday when his lawyer appeared in Criminal Court to ask a continuance of a perjury charge against the racketeer. He said Heitler had been missing since Wednesday.

Almost simultaneously, Police Chief W. Mac Clay, of Itasca, 15 miles from Barrington, reported the finding of a partly burned car, which Heitler had borrowed from Miss Emily Melcher with whom he resided for 23 years.

The charred body was buried yesterday, but was to be exhumed today and brought to the county morgue here where efforts will be made to make a positive identification.

U. S. JOINS WAR

The United States government struck another blow against the Capone booze syndicate and gangland in general here today with the indictment of 23 alleged followers of Al Capone, charging them with violation of the national prohibition law.

The indictments, returned late yesterday, were looked upon as a furtherance of the assault of federal, state and city law-enforcing authorities to drive gangsters from Chicago.

Principal figures named in the indictment are Bert Delaney, said to be in charge of Capone beer manufacturing; Steve Svoboda, brewmaster; Martin Accardo, brother of Tony Accardo, Capone gangster, and John Mattheis.

WIDOW OUSTED BY U. S. GETS AID

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(INS.)—The plight of Mrs. Lillian Larsh, an American-born widow of a Canadian and mother of four children, one of whom was born in the United States, was explained to the Labor Department today by the National Woman's Party.

Mrs. Larsh, whose husband died about 6 months ago, was hastily deported from Detroit to Wallaceburg, Ontario, Can., with only $1.50, which she secured by selling a stove.

It said the destitute mother was given only a day's notice that she was to be taken across the border. She is being cared for by Canadian charities.

The last Congress amended naturalization laws so an American-born wife of alien can regain her citizenship by merely taking the oath of allegiance.

Operation Kills Blind Youth

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP.)—William Rubin, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rubin, 604 Mount Vernon street, Detroit, Mich., died here last night while undergoing an operation for the restoration of his sight.

The operation was being performed by Dr. George H. Moore, who recently restored the sight of Earl Musselman, the youth of Allentown, Pa., who had been blind from birth.

Death was due to heart trouble, a report to the coroner said.

Lawyer Sues Estate Of How, Hobo King

CINCINNATI, O., May 2. — (AP.) — Nicholas Klein, attorney 20 years for James Eads How, reputed millionaire hobo, who died last summer of self-inflicted starvation, opened suit here today to collect $30,000 attorney's fees from How's estate.

Klein said How frequently required the assistance of an attorney because "he had a happy faculty for getting into trouble."

'BUCK' CROUSE'S HEARING SET

Assured that Albert E. (Buck) Crouse, will appear in North Side Police Court Tuesday for a hearing in connection with the theft of supplies from Father James R. Cox's unemployment relief stores, a warrant for his arrest, issued yesterday, will not be served, North Side police said today.

Crouse, a former prize fighter, now in charge of Father Cox's relief agency in old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, Liberty avenue and Seventeenth street, was charged with conspiracy and larceny in the warrant which was sworn out by Brother Andrew, lay worker of the parish and treasurer of the relief organization.

Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, counsel for Crouse, said the charges against Crouse were preferred as a result of a misunderstanding of the circumstances of the case.

Four others, two men and two women, are being held for the alleged thefts. They will be given a hearing with Crouse.

Lily Pons Hailed In Wild Ovation

CINCINNATI, O., May 2.—(AP.)—Lily Pons, appearing here with the Metropolitan Opera Company, last night received one of the greatest ovations ever accorded an opera star, officials of the Metropolitan said today.

After the singing of "Cara Nome," in "Rigoletto," spectators stood on their chairs, whistled, yelled and cheered, delaying the performance for 10 minutes. Miss Pons responded to 13 curtain calls.

London's Daughter And Mate Reconciled

OAKLAND, Cal., May 2.—(AP.)—A news dispatch from Moscow disclosed that Joan London Malamuth, daughter of the late Jack London, author, had become reconciled with her husband, Charles Malamuth, correspondent in Moscow for a news agency. Mrs. Malamuth obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce last May.

Mackaill Romance Failing, M'Cormick to Wed Widow

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Janet Hamilton Gattis, formerly prominent in Washington society, doesn't know whom Dorothy Mackaill will marry, but she was preparing to sail today for Honolulu to wed John McCormick, motion picture producer.

Mrs. Gattis said the film producer cabled to her while he was in Honolulu and she in New York:

"You've probably never been proposed to by cable, so I am at least novel about it. I take this means of offering my hand to you in marriage."

Later cablegrams received here, she said, urged her to "disregard Mackaill reports.

Reports from Honolulu, later denied, had said Miss Mackaill would marry McCormick.

Mrs. Gattis said a divorce decree granted Colleen Moore, screen actress, from McCormick, would become final May 13 and they planned to marry immediately afterward. Mrs. Gattis' husband, Hobson J. Gattis, an Annapolis graduate, died four years ago. She has a five-year-old daughter, Sally.

May-Day Opened Tranquilly and Ended Peacefully

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Only excitement May-Day was when a Red fell off a park bench.

It was a beautiful day and we went around looking for an agitator who needed an assistant loafer.

Berlin, Paris and Moscow reported parades, speeches and marching.

They can parade and speech over here, too. But they've got to do both at the same time.

It all seems very mutual. A Red hates you because you're working. And in this kind of weather you hate a Red because he ain't working.

There was one incident which may be described as an historical anachronism. A Red got swatted with a night club in the daytime.

London was also lackadaisical. It's all right to squander your feet in a parade, but distance lends enchantment to bunions.

Some trouble in Hong Kong. But that's a Red of another color.

And, as usual, last night's setting sun saw nothing accomplished, nothing done. Which any professional agitator will describe as a perfect day.

FLAMES RAZE PARK STAND

Fire of mysterious origin early today destroyed a shelter house and refreshment stand on Serpentine drive, Highland Park, with an estimated loss of $3,000.

The concession was owned by Michael DeRosa, Twelfth Ward political leader, and was the second loss he has sustained under similar circumstances in less than a year. His stand in the rear of Highland Park Zoo was destroyed early last year.

Engine Company No. 8, at Broad street and North Euclid avenue, was summoned by a still alarm.

Street Car Derailed By Tunnel Crash

Two score passengers were shaken when two streets cars collided head-on at the south end of the Mt. Washington tunnel last night. The front wheels of one car were derailed and windows in the other shattered. An outbound Brookline car, switched on to an inbound track collided with a Mt. Washington car. The latter car was derailed.

PLAN DO-X HOP RESUMPTION

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, May 2.—(INS.)—The harbor of Rio de Oro, West African coast, today sheltered the German flying boat DO-X, which yesterday completed another lap of its long-delayed flight to South America.

The 12-motored craft took off from here after a delay of three months.

Commander Friedrich Christiansen said he would probably proceed from Rio de Oro to Bolama for the final hop to Brazil.

Identification Blasts Crater Murder Fear

GLEN COVE, N. Y., May 2.—(AP.)—Belief that the body of a man found floating in Long Island Sound today might be that of the missing Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater was dispelled last night.

Police identified the man as Abraham H. Levy, of Brooklyn, a jeweler, who disappeared on February 14, with $25,000 in uncut diamonds, his own property. The body bore five bullet wounds.

No trace of the diamonds was found.

Deserted Husband Sues Ex-Bath House Owner

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP.)—Thomas F. Clabby, Philadelphia, former owner of Clabby's baths in Atlantic City, yesterday was made defendant in a $100,000 damage suit by Elmer S. Mason, farmer, of Morrisville, Pa., who charged Clabby was responsible for the loss of the affection of his wife, Patricia Mason, of Detroit.

Harry Auldsbacher, counsel for Mason said Clabby was charged with having destroyed Mrs. Mason's affection for her husband because Clabby did not want Mason to marry.

It was stated Mason, who is 30, was formerly employed by Clabby, 70, as chauffeur, private secretary and confidant, and that they were associated in business dealings. Mason asserted Clabby told him he might leave him all his estate, but objected to his ever getting married.

The Masons were married in Miami, Fla., in June, 1930. Last October, Mason's counsel stated, Clabby learned of the marriage and, it is charged in the suit, endeavored to destroy Mrs. Mason's love for her husband by statements concerning his character. Mrs. Mason left her husband last January 3 to go to the home of her parents in Detroit and, it is charged, Clabby furnished her money to return.

PINCHOT IN PROGRESSIVE WAR TO BEAT HOOVER IN '32

PLAN TO RUN FAVORITE SONS

Aim to Win Enough States In Primaries to Assure Defeat for President

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The first threat of real opposition to the renomination of President Hoover was discovered today in the development of a campaign to enter Progressive candidates against him in the Republican presidential primaries next year.

There has been widespread agitation among the Progressives for entering Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho; Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California; Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, and Senator La Follette, Jr. (Rep.), of Wisconsin, in the Republican presidential race. If the Progressive rank and file has its way, these Progressive leaders will be candidates for the Republican nomination next spring.

BROOKHART TALKS

Rumors that Progressives will fight the renomination of Mr. Hoover and seek to enter a number of "favorite sons" against him in state primaries were confirmed by Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa. Brookhart, who was one of the President's outspoken supporters in 1928, has broken with Mr. Hoover. He said:

"There is considerable agitation among the Progressives for launching a campaign to nominate a Progressive next year on the Republican ticket. Progressive candidates should run against the President in every state having a direct presidential primary. It is barely possible we could win enough states to nominate a Progressive.

SEES PINCHOT SUCCESS

"Gov. Pinchot certainly can carry Pennsylvania, while Borah, John H. Norris and La Follette could each carry his own state. Any one of them could carry Illinois, Indiana and Ohio against Mr. Hoover under existing conditions. I think Indiana and Illinois would be easy pound for a Progressive victory. I realize the President's friends are entrenched in the South, but Senator Borah has a strong following in every southern state and might wel carry some of them in convention. Then, young Bob La Follette is strong in the Northwest, as is Norris, and they could take a few more states.

"Standpatters and regular Republicans are saying every day that Mr. Hoover hasn't a Chinaman's chance of being reelected. It is well within reason they will help to nominate a Progressive if they share the same premonition of defeat on the eve of the convention."

WAR DEBT CUT HOPES DASHED

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(INS.)—On the eve of the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce, which opens here Monday, the death knell was sounded today to any hope the foreign delegates might have had that the United States might turn its back on its attitude toward the international war debts.

From an authoritative source it was learned there would be no change in the American policy of demanding payment of debt settlements made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon with the various debtor allied nations.

At the same time, a definite negative was given proposals from abroad, principally from English bankers, that the United States join the movement to control world credits through concerted action by the central banks of the powers or through the new Bank of International Settlements.

Slayer of Ex-Wife And Husband Guilty

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y., May 2.—(AP.)—A verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree was returned last night against Darwin King, Napoli farmer. King fatally shot his divorced wife, Vivian King Dieter, and her husband of four days, Wesley Dieter, in a jealous rage last February.

GETS CONTRACT LIST

Evans has received from the Controller's office a list of contracts awarded since 1928, which he said were not included in the works department list.

Reppert said last night he would check the records.

He said:

"I do not care to say anything until I have gone into the matter carefully and examined the list of contracts which Mr. Evans says is missing."

The contention of the Department of Public Works was that the engineering practice of the department has been improved since June, 1928.

Evans, in a letter to Reppert, yesterday, outlined the particular phases of the department's report to which he takes exception.

SEES BOOST IN COST

The number of contracts listed by the Department of Public Works was much less than that listed by the Controller, Evans declared. He also objected to including in the calculations, cost-plus contracts and others where there was no contract price and only a final cost.

A few contracts were also left out of the report from the Controller's office due to the fact that they had been impounded by the auditors.

Evans declares that when the 211 contracts are added along with the few which were omitted in the Controller's office, and the ones to which he objected because they were of the cost-plus variety or showed only a final estimate are rejected, the percentage of increased quantities is 12.3.

Mrs. Booth Scores 'Red Tape' Charity

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, told the Needlework Guild of America at its annual convention yesterday that most welfare work was "wrapped up in too much red tape." She complimented the Guild for its "simplicity of organization in these days of big welfare agencies."

DUNLAP AWAITS CONCRETE BIDS

Director W. R. Dunlap, of the city Department of Supplies, today was awaiting bids for ready mixed concrete, re-advertised yesterday on a cubic yardage basis, after throwing out original bids because of similarity of figures. Five companies, Dunlap said, bid an identical price.

Edward G. Lang, Public Works Department director, asked Dunlap to re-advertise, because he feared collusion had occurred. The city uses thousands of tons of ready-mixed concrete yearly. In past years the concrete was bought by the ton, but Dunlap said the Public Works Department thought better prices and material could be secured if the yardage system was tried.

W. Va. Man Guilty In Death of Boy, 13

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 2.—(AP.)—Alex Fox, farmer, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in Criminal Court here yesterday in the death of his ward, Roy Stewart, 13. The verdict carries a penalty of from one to five years in the penitentiary. Fox, the state contended, beat the boy preceding his death.

Defense counsel filed a motion to have the verdict set aside and a new trial granted. The hearing on the arguments was set for next week.

CLUES IN WATER 'LEAK' SOUGHT

At least a week's time will be required to solve the "mystery of missing water" from the city's main entering Herrs Island, Thomas M. Benner, assistant city solicitor, said today.

James H. Kennon, engineer in charge of the city Bureau of Water, is at work seeking to learn the status of old agreements of the City of Allegheny with industrial plants located on the island, where more than 1,000,000 gallons of water has been "lost" daily for an unknown length of time.

At least a week will be required to hunt for the records, and whether the law department decides to enter suit to recover $350,000 for the water, will depend on their contents.

The $350,000 is all that could be collected under the six-year statute of limitations, Benner pointed out.

SIX CARNEGIE HERO AWARDS IN PENNA.

Two Bronze Bravery Badges Go to Pittsburgh District Men for Daring Rescues

Six Pennsylvanians — two from the Pittsburgh district—were awarded the bronze medal of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, in recognition of acts of heroism.

The awards were made to Norman D. Sigal, 3173 Brighton road, Pittsburgh; the Rev. Albert B. Taylor, 429 Broadway extension, Carnegie; Florence Margaret McCarten, Dubois; Anetta L. Brenneman, Factoryville; Trafton T. Buchanan, Renovo, and Clarence C. Sponsler, Everett. The latter award was made posthumously.

Saving Marshall A. Christy, 58, a lawyer, from death beneath a train at Sewickley on February 11, 1929, won the medal for Sigal, 41, a railroad brakeman.

Christy had slipped on ice-covered ties and fell on his back between the rails on which a train was rapidly approaching. Sigal leaped from a standing baggage-car, grasped Christy and pulled him to safety barely a second before the train roared by.

The Rev. Taylor's award was for a similar act of heroism. He saved Wilma M. Hinds, 10, from being struck by a train at Carnegie, October 16. The girl, crossing the railroad tracks, became confused at the sight of an approaching train, stumbled and fell on the rails.

Though in ill health, the minister, who is 47 years old, ran to the rescue. He, too, stumbled and fell to one knee as he reached the track. Reaching across the rails, he pulled her free just as the locomotive reached the spot.

Miss McCarten rescued Claire Kelly, 11, from death in a burning building at Dubois, January 10, 1930, while Buchanan, a 15-year-old schoolboy, saved James C. English, 10, from drowning in the Susquehanna River, near Renovo, June 6, 1928. The posthumous award was made to Sponsler for his rescue of Ellis E. Sponsler, at Everett, December 16, 1930, from suffocation in a gasoline tank he was cleaning.

DELAY COUNTY TAX COLLECTION

County Treasurer John Francies has postponed beginning the collection of taxes until the fate is known of pending legislation in Harrisburg. A discount is allowed on taxes paid during May, June and July, but Francies merely took the names and addresses of residents who called to pay taxes yesterday and explained a statement would be mailed to them later.

The legislation in question is an act that would permit eligibles to be assessed for voting purposes up to within two months of primary day instead of the existing court ruling that forbids such assessments after the November preceding the primary. The act also provides for a flat 50-cent poll tax instead of the present system of a personal tax graded according to occupation income.

The delay in beginning collections will not seriously affect the county as May has always been a light month for payments. Collections for May 1 last year totaled $3,830, those for the entire month, $367,765.38.

Death of Father Crushes Joy of May Queen

The joy of being crowned Queen of the May at ceremonies in the Springdale High School, where she is a senior, was crushed yesterday for Eleanor Campbell.

Shortly after the ceremonies in which she was honored by schoolmates Miss Campbell received word of her father's death. Charles Campbell, 40, janitor of the Russellton School, was found dead in Gigy's barn in Russellton.

The morgue report said that he had hanged himself. He was said to have been in ill-health.

OFFICER SHOT, KILLS BANDIT

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—Bernard Sherry, a plainclothes patrolman, walked into a restaurant in Third avenue late last night while two gunmen were holding up the patrons of the place. He killed one of them, wounded the other, and was himself shot in the abdomen.

Sherry was attracted to the restaurant by the suspicious actions of a man stationed at the doorway. Entering, he found the customers lined up against the walls. Fifteen shots were exchanged.

LARGER RURAL 'HIGHS' URGED

Rural districts in Pennsylvania, as well as in other states, must find a way to operate bigger and better high schools, according to L. H. Dennis, deputy superintendent of public instruction and director of vocational education in Pennsylvania. He was one of the speakers at the closing meeting of the North Atlantic region of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, last night in the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School.

Besides stressing the necessity for consolidation of schools in rural districts, Dr. Dennis said that proper state authorities should find a way to produce state revenues to help the neediest districts.

He also recommended that "there are several little high schools in Pennsylvania, which might better be made into junior high schools, and let several of these districts then be served by a single large, efficient high school."

40 Years' Taxes Paid To Wrong County

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 2.—(AP.)—For 40 years Luzerne County has been assessing and collecting taxes on three houses near Beaver Brook which are in Carbon County, the Luzerne assessors discovered when notice was received that the Carbon County authorities are going to collect the taxes henceforth. The houses were recently sold by a coal company.

BLAST VICTIM WINS $25,000

Martin King, 22, of Homestead, was awarded $25,000 damages from the Equitable Gas Company in a verdict returned yesterday. King charged the company with negligence resuling in an explosion at the Munhall postoffice December 5, 1929, in which he was injured, requiring an operation necessitating removal of a portion of his brain, causing him to lose his power of speech.

He testified that at the time he was a passenger in a street car where the explosion occurred, and was unconscious for nine days in the Homestead Hospital.

POWER MAN QUIZZED ON TEXT BOOKS

Richardson Explains Utilities' Aims in Schools Before Legislative Investigators

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 2.—The possibility that the Moore committee investigating utilities may complete its work next week was expressed today, following the termination, yesterday, of the investigation into the attempt of utilities to have school text books revised.

Maj. J. S. S. Richardson, former head of the Pennsylvania Public Service Information Committee, was the last witness heard yesterday. He was questioned concerning letters to A. W. Robertson, now chairmon of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and formerly president of the Philadelphia Company, Pittsburgh, letters to James S. Benn, public service commissioner, and other correspondence concerning the organization of school book revision.

BOOK NOT OBJECTIONABLE

Asked by the Rev. James R. Cox, Pittsburgh, concerning a letter from a Mr. Jones, of Kansas, charging that a school book, "Community Civics," and written by Prof. R. O. Hughes, of Peabody High School, Pittsburgh, was inimical to corporations and utilities, Richardson answered that he did not consider the book so.

Father Cox asked:

"After this letter did you take up the matter immediately?"

Richardson answered:

"I may have done so, yes, sir."

Father Cox:

"You had committees all over the country watching that same thing?"

Richardson:

"No, sir; Mr. Jones was a member of an educational committee in Kansas, similar to the one in Pennsylvania."

Richardson said that his committee hoped to counteract the preaching of Socialistic doctrines in the schools, and Louis Hagmaier asked:

"Do you think it should bring a serious objection to have anything in a public school book about the public utilities being a monopoly?"

The witness replied:

"Not at all, but when the author of a text book advocates public ownership on the ground that private operators are dishonest, I think that is not quite a good thing to teach children."

DISCUSS TEACHERS

The letters concerned school books they held objectionable. It was suggested that schoolmen's opposition to large corporations would be reduced if teachers' salaries were raised.

Discussing the letters Counsel Walker asked and Richardson replied as follows:

"May I ask what you refer to when you state in the letter 'If utilities companies, in a discreet way, could foster a movement for adequate remuneration of teaching personnel in our public schools, I am convinced good results would come?'"

"Well, it is a good result to get a fellow more pay."

"Do you think that answers the question, Major?"

"I think so, yes sir."

"Why should the utility companies foster a movement to raise the salaries of school teachers?"

"To make them more—to give them a better viewpoint on life and not have them sore, because they are disappointed and broke all the time."

POLE IN STEUBEN STREET, CRAFTON, SHATTERED BY BUS THAT TORE OUT FIRE PLUG

The Pittsburgh-to-Imperial bus that tore out a fireplug, shattered this pole when, according to Driver Andrew Sauers, Imperial, his steering apparatus failed to operate. Wires were loosened, telephones in the district were silenced and one man had two ribs broken.

Barnes Lays Business Ills To Legislative 'Cures'

ATLANTIC CITY, May 2.—(INS.)—Political meddlers and "legislative panaceas" were blamed today for the business depression.

Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce, made the charge last night at a dinner which closed the chamber's annual meeting.

Citing politics and governmental interference with industry as the chief causes of the world-wide industrial depression, Barnes demanded curtailment of "legislative panaceas."

San Francisco was selected as the meeting place for next year. Officers chosen were: Silas H. Strawn, Chicago president; Julius H. Barnes, New York, chairman of board; A. J. Brosseau, New York; W. H. Wiley, Sharples, W. Va.; John G. Lonsdale, St. Louis; W. Rufus Abbott, Chicago; Karl De Laittre, Minneapolis, and Paul Shoup, San Francisco, vice presidents. Oscar Wells, Birmingham, was named treasurer.

Barnes urged reconsideration of anti-trust laws, change of banking laws to establish credit for agriculture and absention of government from competition with private business as some of the reforms necessary.

Twenty-five resolutions dealing with unemployment, business stabilization and anti-trust laws were passed by the chamber.

Coolidge Opposes Control Of Business From Outside

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 2.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

With the convocation of representatives of various lines of industry have come proposals for controlling and standardizing business. Almost all these suggestions are for artificial rules of conduct to save a situation from the inevitable consequences of the force of natural laws. If business is to be controlled from the outside the liberty of action and power of initiative will be greatly circumscribed. If standardization is adopted in its entirety the result is rigid fossilization which prevents progress.

Mr. Coolidge

Neither the state nor the federal govments can supply the information and wisdom necessary to direct the business activity of the nation. About all that can wisely be done in this direction is provided by trade organizations. Additions to the system promise most if they are voluntary and provide a better co-ordination of activities. One of the fundamental needs is sound banking. Our financial power continually needs diversion from wrong chanels and direction to right channels.

The experience, skill and wisdom necessary to guide business cannot be elected or appointed. It has to grow up naturally from the people. The process is long and fraught with human sacrifice, but it is the only one that can work. Edison and Ford are not government creations.

165 HONORED IN PITT FETE

More than 165 students received recognition for scholastic and extra-curricular attainment at the annual tap day exercises in Memorial Hall at 10:30 yesterday morning, the opening event of the annual spring festival of the University of Pittsburgh, a revival of Pitt Week.

Dean Robert C. Clothier announced Edward Schultz, senior in business administration, as winner of the annual George Wharton Pepper prize made to the most representative student in the university. It was also revealed that Margaret Hall, senior in the school of education, had been selected by senior women as queen of the graduating class.

A set of chemistry books was awarded to Joseph Phillips, a sophomore in the college, by Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemistry fraternity for outstanding work in chemistry. Samuel Camp received the Francis C. Phillips medal for highest honors in chemistry.

The Pittsburgh Panhellenic Association awarded six scholarships for high averages and leadership to Marie Domesticus, Bernice Kerr, Louise Linn, Gladys Schmidt, Lois Beatty and Patterson McLean.

Raymond Kent, senior in the school of business administration, received the Delta Sigma Pi key for highest scholastic average in his school for seven semesters.

Other honorary fraternities who tapped were: Chi Rho Nu, premedical; Xylon, journalistic; Kappa Phi Kappa, professional education; Cwens, sophomore activities for women; Druids, sophomore activites for men; Mortar Board, national activities for women, and Omicron Delta Kappa, activities for men.

PLANES, SHIP SEEK EXPLORER

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 2.—(INS.)—Two relief expeditions approached the northern coast of Greenland by air and sea today in an effort to effect the rescue of Augustine Courtauld, lost British scientist and explorer marooned on an icecap some 140 miles inland.

The Icelandic patrolboat Odin, bearing the expedition commanded by Dr. Johanneson, wirelessed that it was but 60 miles from the ice barrier in Angmagsalig Bay.

Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish airman, was ready to take off from Reykjavik for the Greenland Coast. The captain and his two companions flew to Reykjavik from Bergen, Norway.

A wireless message from the Odin stated a seaplane was fully assembled on a large ice floe and ready for an instant takeoff. Following a conversation with Angmagsalik by radio, it was decided to defer the hopoff pending the arrival of a light plane from the Greenland base to guide the seaplane to shore.

REVOLT FEARED IN PORTUGAL

LISBON, May 2.—(AP.)—President Carmona and his cabinet sat in the Third Regiment barracks protected by barbed wire and machine guns today, but while revolution threatened at home, Portuguese forces in Madeira sent word that the rebel junta at Funchal had surrendered.

The minister of the interior sent word from the fortress that the naval expeditionary force which bombarded Funchal from sea and air had brought the rebels to their knees.

The government heads took to cover yesterday when May Day riots got out of hand and police turned a machine gun on a mob in Rocio square. Two men were killed and about 20 were wounded before some semblance of order was restored.

It looked like revolt and the cabinet, which sought shelter in the fort once before a week ago, went back there while the army took things in hand. Today the city lay under an ominous calm.

FATHER KILLS SELF, 3 SONS

GARFIELD, N. J., May 2.—(INS.)—John Lubic, 46, formerly the owner of a small confectionery business, shot and killed his three sons and then killed himself in his home early today.

The dead:

John Lubic, the father; Arthur Lubic, 11; Emil Lubic, 12, and John Lubic, Jr., 4.

Business depression had unsettled the father's mind, according to the police.

STUDENTS VOTE HALT IN STRIKE

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., May 2.—(AP.)—Three hundred and twenty-five striking students of Magnolia High School voted at a mass meeting last night to return to their studies Monday, pending adjustment of their difficulties with the school board.

Still demanding the reappointment of Basil Liggett as athletic director and protesting against the new coach, Orville Kiger, the the students named a committee to confer with the school directors and issued a statement that in case of failure to reach an agreement with the board, the strike will be resumed.

An offer of the directors to select another man as coach, but to retain Kiger as a member of the faculty and as assistant director of athletics, was turned down by the students. The strike started Wednesday.

Bankruptcy Case Fought by Voliva

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP.)—A motion to dismiss bankruptcy action brought against Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Zion City religious colony, was made before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

Eli B. Felsenthal and Archie Schimberg, counsel for Voliva, said his Zion property is worth $3,000,000 and charged that the petition did not contain any allegation of bankruptcy. Voliva, in an interview, attributed the petition to unfriendly Zionists.

DRIVE TO JAIL 'LEGS' PUSHED

CATSKILL, N. Y., May 2.—(INS.)—State and federal authorities moved further today in their attempt to send Jack (Legs) Diamond to prison.

A representative of the federal government was here to determine whether Diamond may be put on trial in New York on an old narcotic law violation charge.

Whether any action was taken against Diamond by the grand jury here yesterday will not be revealed until May 11, when Supreme Court Justice Bliss will receive the jury's report.

Two raids here disclosed a liquor cache valued at $20,000, a beer-loading station, and resulted in the discovery that Diamond, distrustful of telephones, used carrier pigeons as a means of communication.

Dr. Thomas Holmes said at the Albany City Hospital, where Diamond was taken after being shot Monday:

"Diamond is a very sick man, but he will not die this time from bullets."

Girl Who Took Poison In Taxi Identified

Identity of a girl who took poison while riding in a taxicab early Thursday was established in West Penn Hospital early today. Police said they learned she was Kittie Vincent, of 1918 West North avenue. Her condition was still serious.

The driver told police the girl engaged his cab on the North Side and asked to be driven to the East End. When near the hospital he looked back and saw her lowering a bottle from her lips. She collapsed, and the driver took her to the hospital.

Woman Acquitted In Triangle Killing

WELCH, W. Va., May 2.—(AP.)—A jury last night acquitted Mrs. Winnie Rose, 27, Berwind, of charges of slaying Mrs. Daisy Stewart, 24, at Berwind, on February 13.

Mrs. Stewart was shot and killed when a bus in which she was en route to her home at War halted in Berwind. The state contended Mrs. Rose boarded the bus to shoot Mrs. Stewart. Mrs. Rose declared she shot in self-defense when Mrs. Stewart attacked her in a dispute over Mrs. Stewart's alleged friendship with Mrs. Rose's husband.

WOMAN TELLER GETS 2 YEARS

Pearl Ida Ferguson, 32, of Brookline, former teller of the Dormont Savings and Trust Company, from which she confessed embezzling more than $4,000 with which to play the "numbers," was sentenced to two and one-half years in the county jail by Judge James H. Gray here yesterday.

Judge Gray declared that in due time he would entertain a petition for her parole. Miss Ferguson's confession resulted in the arrests of six lottery operatives, all of whom pleaded guilty. Five have been sentenced and another is awaiting sentence in jail.

Fire, Fall Injure Woman in Dormont

Mrs. Ella Slohr, 48, a widow, was in a serious condition in St. Francis Hospital today from burns and injuries suffered when her clothing caught fire from an open gas stove in her home, 2743 Louisiana avenue, Dormont, last night. In running downstairs after her clothing ignited, she slipped and fell to the floor below. At the hospital it was said she was burned on the body and had suffered a fractured leg.

North Side Man Dies From Fall in Home

Charles Henshaw, 40, died in Allegheny General Hospital today from injuries suffered when he fell down stairs at his home, 204 Anderson street, North Side, Wednesday, according to a report to the morgue.

2 WOMEN TAKEN ON 'GIN' JURY

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 2.—(INS.)—With resumption of the selection of jurors scheduled for Monday, the all-important question in the minds of attorneys in the Virgil Kirkland murder trial today was what would be the attitude of a woman juror towards a 20-year-old high school boy charged with attacking and murdering his 18-year-old sweetheart?

Defense attorneys have indicated a belief that women might be more merciful towards Kirkland than men. They have temporarily accepted two women, Mrs. Martha Cowdrey, 50, and Mrs. Mattie Conover, a 55-year-old grandmother, as prospective jurors.

Both told defense lawyers they had no prejudice against drinking among young people. The murder of Arlene Draves was the climax of a drinking party in Gary.

HAITI ANSWERS IN BUTLER ROW

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—With an explanatory letter from Minister Bellegarde, of Haiti, on his desk, Secretary Stimson had in his possession all the data necessary for disposal of the protest by Maj. Gen Smedley D. Butler against remarks attributed to the diplomat.

The Secretary of State did not indicate what action he would take, but in official quarters it was believed the episode would be quickly terminated.

No disclosure was made as to the contents of Minister Bellegarde's letter, which replied to a polite note of inquiry addressed to him by the Secretary of State earlier in the week.

The minister was quoted in a copyrighted story in the Washington Herald as saying a Haitian fort, for the capture of which Butler was given a congressional medal, did not exist. The minister later said he had been misquoted.

Second of Maniac Slayers Captured

LIMA, O., May 2.—(AP.)—The second of two insane convicts who yesterday killed Louis Kiehl, 48, guard at the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, was back in custody today.

Samuel Nelson, 19, Negro, was captured in a field 8 miles from the hospital. He escaped after he and John Powell, 24, attacked the guard and strangled him to death. Powell was apprehended as he tried to crawl from a window.

Proposed Motor Code Hits Snake-Driving

(This is the third of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania Motor Code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

Drastic changes in the state motor code are now pending before the legislature, designed to check "snake" driving, reckless driving and speeding.

The proposed changes would give police officers the right to arrest motorists committing these offenses as well as others now listed as "summary offenses," and take them to the nearest police station where they would be compelled to post bond equivalent to the maximum fine.

The "summary offenses," which also include passing another machine on a curve, crossing yellow divisional lines and ignoring automatic traffic signals, at present call only for a summons or tag—the officer not being empowered to take the prisoner into custody for the posting of bond or for an immediate hearing.

Television Records First Marriage Ceremony

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—The first marriage ceremony to be televised—if that's the word—is a matter of history today.

Frank Borle du Vall, 25, a television engineer, and Miss Grayce Lillian Jones, 20, were the principals. And except for the flickering lights and the whir and click of curious-looking machines it didn't differ greatly from any other wedding.

In a room on an upper floor of a skyscraper in Fifth avenue last night an announcer stepped into the focus of the machine and told what was going to happen. The bride and bridegroom came forward, smiled into the machine, and bade everyone "Good evening." The ceremony was read, the bridegroom kissed the bride, relatives sniffled and said the usual things. Du Vall said:

"I don't see why there is so much fuss. The ceremony is [illegible], but in every other way the wedding is absolutely regular."

Those who have television sets in their homes reported that the broadcast "filmed well" and that the voices "came over perfectly."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher Marrying In East

Although there are no notable weddings here at home today, there are many in the East, some of which are of interest here.

Among them is one taking place in New York, Miss Alma B. Ford, of Hampton, Va., announces the marriage of her niece, Dorothy Alma Ford, to Robert Wardrop Crane, son of the Daniel E. Cranes, of Pittsburgh and Owosso, Mich. The ceremony is taking place this afternoon in St. Mark's in the Bowery, New York.

Arlene Smyth is maid of honor, and Daniel Edward Crane, Jr., of New York, is best man. The bride is a graduate of State College and the bridegroom of St. Johns-Manlius. He also attended Olivet College.

FROCKS WITH EYELETS TO FEATURE SUMMER FASHION

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 1.—The eyelet is viewing the world of fashion this season from many vantage points. For one finds the ubiquitous eyelet embroidery on everything this season. Hats, suits, blouses, frocks, evening gowns, lingerie, all are eyeleted. This type of embroidery is certainly more suggestive of summer and more conducive to coolness and comfort than almost anything else, so much so that one wonders why all the little eyelets should have remained closed for so many seasons. Most delightful are the eyeleted organdie evening frocks that will float through the ballroom this summer. And the summer suits, with an entire all-over design of broderie Anglaise will help to make the torrid season quite bearable. These suits, with their eyelets worked in color to contrast with the main hue of the suit, should dot the landscape shortly. Hats with straw brims and crowns of eyeleted batiste have already made their appearance in the various millinery houses and look like being a strong contender for success.

* * *

ALTHOUGH MOST houses are not showing so much black for evening wear as they did formerly, one still sees some most distinguished black evening frocks. Such a one is the Lucile model sketched for today's page. It is one of the most successful of Lucile's evening models and is of black crepe satin. Most attractive and novel is the shoulder ornament of strass, in the form of a bow-knot holding the looped scarf at one shoulder. A diagonally placed peplum lends distinction to the attractively slim silhouette. The lower edge of the skirt is circular in movement and reaches to the instep.

* * *

THE SOFT and charming ensemble by Champcommunal is of batiste worked all over with eyelets. The bodice and jacket are of light blue, the skirt is of black. These eyelets are done in color matching the material, that is, blue on blue and black on black. A black flower, black suede belt and gloves are worn with this ensemble. The turban contributes to the ensemble note by being of the two fabrics used for the skirt and blouse. It is very soft and summery in effect. Bound scallops edge the blouse and jacket. The former is sleeveless and separate from the skirt.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Joe Mackrell, the register of Wills, and Mrs. Mackrell have sailed on the Aquitania for Bermuda . . . the Pittsburgh Courier, local Negro newspaper of national reputation, is conducting a campaign against Amos 'n' Andy, whose radio act the paper contends is a disgrace to the Negro race . . . Gov. Pinchot would rather announce a campaign on the thirteenth than any other date because he feels that is his lucky number . . . Bert Taggert writes golf but as a player he has yet to break 100 . . .

Incident in Hamilton avenue: a day or two ago a hit-and-run driver struck a dog, kept on going . . . A crowd gathered . . . A man in an expensive limousine stopped, took the dog to his car and told the crowd he'd take it to a veterinary . . .

Add revived definitions: A gentleman is one who is never unintentionally rude . . . Bill Boyce, the railways man, in the hospital, is recovering. . . . You can leave Pittsburgh in the afternoon, fly to New York, see a show and return next morning, but there are no good shows to see. . . . Dave O'Loughlin, the doctor, once defeated George Lott at tennis. . . . That street car you see parked in Jumonville street between Fifth and Forbes every so often is the pay car for the railways' operators. . . . There's talk among the politicians that Bert Succop, fired as the director of supplies, may get that empty seat in Council . . . And a lot of organization men would like to know just what Charlie McGovern's going to run for next. . . .

* * *

Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, has the same enemy in golf and business—T. D. Bonneville, manager of the Alvin . . . Tom Mix, who is coming back to town with the circus, high-hatted reporters on his last trip . . . What North Side police inspector has a cottage at Conneaut Lake? . . . Charlie Faulkner . . . To admirers of hard-shell crabs: They're back again, but not so good yet . . . The old William Thaw mansion in Stanwix street, one of the town's landmarks, is being torn down . . .

Tip to fishermen: When they ran out of bait Bill Boughamer's sons used trailing arbutus and made a catch! . . . A contributor wants to know what's become of the old-fashioned girl who used to smoke only one pack of cigarets a day . . .

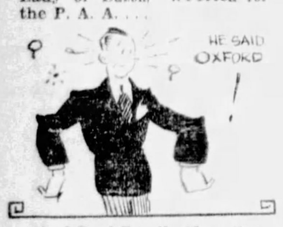
Reminiscence: The restaurant that Harry Davis, now a convalescent, used to run in the arcade between Fifth and Diamond . . . And that three-piece orchestra, Dave Broudy, the first and second violinist; Zoel Parenteau, the piano player, and a piccolo player . . . And Al Mamaux, the ball-player, who used to drop in regularly and contribute tenor solos to the music . . . Parenteau later collaborated with a young Pittsburgh columnist, Marc Connelly ("Green Pastures") on that musical, "The Lady of Luzon," written for the P. A. A. . . .



And Paul Farrell, the attorney who teaches at Duquesne University, tells the true story of the surprised lawyer who was examining a Chinese witness in Criminal Court. . . . "You speakee English?" the lawyer condescended to ask. . . . "Yes," the Chinese replied with equal condescension. "I studied the language for three years at Oxford." . . .

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

All the casualties are not in yet, but it seems to have been a mighty quiet May Day. Heretofore the Reds have battled with the police, but this year everybody is "beefing" so that you can't tell a Red from a taxpayer, so everybody had an even break. Old Hollywood has reconciled itself to conditions of the depression better than anywhere. They have just charged off 50 per cent of their husbands as a total loss, voluntarily cut alimony; reorganizing with less overhead and going back to prewar mates and conditions. Yours, WILL.

Polo Now Sport of Stars Way Out West Where Films Are Made

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.

Polo is the latest sport to capture the interest of Hollywood.

For a long time, Will Rogers and Jack Holt were the only two members of the film colony who were proficient in this swank and colorful sport. Now, enough players have developed for First National to have a team of its own.

On Sunday week, Ray Griffith, Darryl Zanuck, Charles Kenyon and Lucien Hubbard meet Tom Moore, John Cromwell, Cy Bartlett (Alice White's boy friend) and an undetermined fourth in a challenge match. As most of the two teams are beginners, anything may happen.

Jack Holt

George O'Brien and Arthur Caesar are two other film converts to polo. Will Rogers, of course, is the outstanding player, and his love of the dangerous sport has caused Fox many an uneasy weekend. Since disposing of his string of ponies, Jack Holt hasn't devoted much time to the game.

While Joe E. Brown is completing his stage engagement for Henry Duffy in "Elmer the Great" the whole writing staff at First National is at work on an original story for his next picture.

So far, the plan is to name it: "Local Boy Makes Good."

In all likelihood, Mervyn Leroy will direct the picture after he finishes "Five Star Final."

California's Governor, James Rolph, Jr., is appearing in one of Universal's "Strange as It Seems" short-reelers.

His practice of wearing cowboy boots instead of shoes is responsible . . . Pifi Dorsay has turned author to write a fan magazine story about Will Rogers . . . All you anglers will envy Wallace Beery, who owns a collection of 600 fishing rods. He has used them all and knows their good and bad points . . . Dartmouth students go for emotional actresses. They select Ann Harding as their favorite, with Greta Garbo, Ruth Chatterton, Joan Crawford and Marlene Dietrich following in the order named. Oh, yes, and they vote necking as their favorite indoor sport . . . After reading the first half of Tom Reed's script, Cyril Gardner opined: "So far, it's only colossal" . . . Report has it that Fox will offer Mae Marsh a long-term contract as a result of her work in "Over the Hill."

'MILLIONAIRE' OPENS ON ENRIGHT SCREEN

"The Millionaire," starring George Arliss, opened yesterday in the Enright. The picture also continues as the feature in the Warner.

The new Enright stage show is titled "Spring Follies." Among the entertainers are Joe Penner, comedian, and Peggy Bernier, Blues singer. Brian McDonald continues as master of ceremonies.

Schramm Orchestra At Kennywood Dance

Music for dancing in the Kennywood Park pavilion tonight will be by Marty Schramm and his orchestra. Dancing is being held at the park on Saturday nights only until the opening of the daily picnic and free act season, Friday, May 15. Tomorrow's concerts will be played by Izzy Cervone's Band, with broadcasting from "The Voice of Kennywood," the park's internal radio, as an extra feature. All amusements will be in operation.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Balloonatics who will be up in the air in "Dirigible," which goes aloft on the Pitt screen Monday, include Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Fay Wray. . . . After the opening flight there will be one pair of shows per diem.

A GOB'S LIFE IS GREAT FOR HE'S SON-IN-LAW TO THE ADMIRAL

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Handsome, youthful and gentlemanly Bob Montgomery is a star now, and makes his debut in a picture at the Penn Theater called "Shipmates." It's a good picture, though sometimes it reminds you of Gilbert and Sullivan and sometimes of Horatio Alger. Bob gets knocked about and his eye blackened by Ernest Torrence, as a roughneck Scotchman, but in the end he goes to Annapolis with honors and weds the admiral's daughter. Any gob can do this in Hollywood.

George Seibel

After swabbing the deck and taking every sort of rough treatment, he fights a big fire on an oil tank steamer, saving a dockful of explosives from blowing up. He goes to the hospital for some hundred feet of film, but a hero doesn't mind that. It never leaves a scar!

LASS WHO LOVED A SAILOR

Dorothy Jordan is the lass who loves this sailor, and she loses no time doing so, though he has the doubtful manners of all movie gobs. The real article never looks as fresh, and hardly ever acts as fresh when sober.

In spite of the wild characterization and wilder plot, this is a very worthy picture. Everything happens just in the nick of time, and happens for the best, but that's the way with movie heroes. They don't need to have sense, because they're handsome, and they don't need to exhibit manners, for the heroine is well paid to love them anyhow.

DICK LEIBERT CONDUCTING

Dick Leibert appeared in a double role—after conducting the orchestra with vim, he played the organ and got everybody singing, "Tie a Little String Around Your Finger, So You'll Remember Me."

Wilbur Hall is a fine musician who uses his musical gifts for purposes of comedy. Dick and Edith Barstow are tap dancers, toe dancers and Russian dancers who do all three things at once and up a staircase. Vivian Fay is very graceful and Bert Faye is very funny. Bert Frohman as master of ceremonies kept things moving, and the Chester Hale Girls were as lovely and graceful as ever, and more than ever in a waltz tempo.

DOWNTOWN Y. M. C. A. WINS DRAMA PRIZE

The hotly contested Drama League tournament of amateur players came to a close last night, and the judges awarded the first prize to the Dramatic Club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. for its presentation of Eugene O'Neill's "In the Zone."

The second prize went to the Gargoyle Club of Shady Side Academy for Ray E. Hurd's "Little Black Hands." The third prize went to the Dramatic Club of the Pennsylvania College for Women, which presented the fantasy "The Misses Biffin," by Beatrice Lewis. Fourth prize was awarded to the Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church for Synge's "Riders to the Sea."

Honorable mention was accorded to the Jamestown Players Club, to the Washington Drama League players and to the Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club.

Nine players from the various casts were distinguished by special mention for outstanding work. These were James Arensberg, Mrs. J. C. Attenborough, Suzanne M. Colby, Madeline Skelly Faust, Stephen C. Grayves, Catherine S. Harper, Mrs. Walter S. Hazzard, Henry H. Hood and Ruth Nirella.

The first of the plays on the closing night was "In the Secret Places," by Elsa B. Nessenson, which the Jamestown Players put on, directed by Mrs. John Cushman. The players were Ursula J. Sullivan, S. G. Davis, Barbara Rugg, Theodore Vimmerstedt, Richmond Hayes, Herbert McKenny, Mrs. Walter S. Hazzard and Della Fairchild.

The Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club presented "Duetto," by Katherine S. Burgess, staged by John W. Gallaher. The players were William Bradford and Suzanne M. Colby.

Two original plays by Pittsburgh playwrights were given.

"Little Black Hands," by Ray E. Hurd, was presented by the Gargoyle Club of Shady Side Academy. It was staged by Cleveland D. Rea and acted by David Parry, James Arensberg, James Hamilton, William Miller and Alexander Hill.

"Margaret in Jaxos," by Carroll FitzHugh, was played by the Washington Drama League. The players were Dorothea H. Blume, Katheryn Weller and Henry H. Hood.

War Romance

It looks like Constance Bennett and Joel McCrea meet with war and romance in "Born to Love," picture now showing in both the Fulton and Sheridan Square theaters.

DAVIS FILM INSPIRED BY VICTOR HERBERT MELODIES

By FRANK T. SMITH

The immortal melodies of Pittsburgh's own Victor Herbert cast their spell over a delighted audience in the Davis Theater yesterday at the premiere of "Kiss Me Again," starring that ever-delightful Bernice Claire, of stage and screen fame.

Based on Herbert's beautiful "Mlle. Modiste," the Davis' "Kiss Me Again" bears a modern twang, yet for the most part adheres to the theme of that never-dying operetta. The story is as well known as all of Pittsburgh famous composer's music and this production done in all-color, is an eyeful and an earful worth witnessing.

Aiding and abetting Miss Claire—and what a delectable morsel she is and how splendidly she plays the role of the little "Fifi" who rose from a shop girl to a successful career in opera—are Walter Pidgeon, Edward Everett Horton and June Collyer.

"Kiss Me Again" marks a revival—at least for Pittsburgh—of tune productions and it's a welcome relief after a "screen pollution" of gang warfare, rum runners, society dramas and whatnots which have held sway for the past several months. Chorus numbers—both men and women—left nothing to be desired. A fashion parade displaying the last word in milady's spring and summer boudoir, beach, and ballroom attire gives the production a worthy start.

Eddy Foy, Jr., in a variety-sketch, an amusing comedy entitled "In Conference" and a reel of timely news topics completes the Davis program. It's here a week—see it.

Dance and Concerts West View Feature

Parillo and his Ten Music Masters will furnish the music tonight for the second week-end dance in West View Park.

The park will be open tomorrow, with Danny Nirella's Band giving four concerts, two in the afternoon and two in the evening. The picnic season will open May 25.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Lou Tellegen, author of "Women Have Been Kind" (of sappy), says that the report about his swapping an ocean voyage for his testimonial embarrassed him no end . . . But that he doesn't expect you to deny it for him, as he doesn't believe in miracles . . . "Betty, Be Careful," has been deferred until Monday eve'g, May 4 . . . Edna Leedom was overheard telling friends last night that she has been quietly divorced from the rich Frank Doelger . . . A Wm. Wagner of Pittsburgh called to say that since the stock market break of Monday you cannot buy a rope there without a prescription . . . How in the world did you overlook a better comeback than the one you used at your Philadelphia Inquirer heckler? . . . I mean the chap who said that the longest word in the dictionary isn't incomprehensible to him for he knows the meaning of "antidisestablishmentarianism" . . . If you would only consult the handsome dictionary given you by Dr. Vizetelly, now and then sir, you might have crushed that not-so-smart aleck . . . By reminding him that the longest word is "antidisestablishmentarianistically" . . . You don't pronounce it—just holls around in your mouth.

Those two chaps with whom you made a 5:30 app't about movie shorts waited and waited and then left pretty peeved . . . You might have phoned . . . One of your admirers called just now and fiendishly asserted that he was glad the report about you hit with a bottle turned out to be false . . . But, he added, you can't say that it isn't a good idea . . . Hammel of the Wm. Morris Agency wants you to know that Howard Hughes isn't going to make a movie of "Queer People" because the censors became unbearable, and that the deal they were negotiating for you is off . . . That letter you received complaining about the dry drinking fountains in Central Park ("so that soda sellers can reap a harvest") draws the comment that the reason that fountains were dry is that they always are in the winter, because the pipes freeze . . . Miss Dietrich's first name is not pronounced Mar-lean, but Mar-lah-nah.

Considering that Miss Guinan is guying you in her act, with a song which would have people believe you cannot keep a secret, why not tell what happened to her when she played in Ridgewood recently? . . . Well, this is what happened. She left the stage to kiss men's bald heads in the audience, and when she kissed one man's bald pate, the man's irate wife smacked Texas a wallop and gave her a piece of her mind . . . You might hint on Monday that the governor of a nearby state, who was recently rich, is broke . . . A voice on the phone instructed me to tell you that three out of 48 states, Arizona, Wyoming and Washington, have no nicknames . . . Don't say I didn't tell you, now!

Oh, yes. Another tip is that Isaac F. Morcosson, the Saturday Evening Post statesman, is supposed to have returned on the Europa with a "secret" bride . . . He's the chap who got $900,000 when one of David Graham Phillips' sisters passed on . . . You've heard, of course, about card players being assaulted by kibitzers, but you never heard of a card player assaulting a kibitzer! . . . It happened at the Thanatopsis and Inside Straight Club the other night . . . F. P. A., who had been losing heavily, was in a mood, when Gerald Brooks' femme secretary happened in and she was very gay. So she sat on Mr. A's chair . . . Well, you can imagine. He was simply overjoyed . . . So he almost killed her! . . . And I don't mean with kindness . . . That woman who sneezed so loud, and broke the audience up into spasms of laughter at the premiere of Tallulah Bankhead's picture was Gladys Glad . . . Since when has Gladys become a movie critic?

George Martin called to tell you that the real reason a chicken crosses the road is to get to a roadhouse . . . You might add that to Ed Wynn's imitation of a chicken—"I'm Hungry! ! !" . . . That cop in New Jersey who arrested Nannery isn't so brave . . . All the New Jersey motor cops are just as courageous—they aren't afraid of newspapermen, at all . . . One of the boys was doing 50 through Jersey City and the cop handed him back his newspaper credentials, saying: "Oh, nothin' doin'! I've been associated pressed to death!" . . . By the way, Bobby Connolly, who is directing dances for the "Follies," has an aunt who is the image of Marie Dressler . . . Do you think you could get my sister in that show? . . . Or do you think Ziegfeld remembers your notice on "Smiles?"

I understand that Fay Marbe is having some trouble with the radio people because during her last broadcast she sang a double-entendre song in German . . . When I came in this morning I counted 37 cigaret stubs under your chair.

You are hereby informed, sir, that the Hollywood Gardens, near Pelham, reopen on Decoration Day and they would appreciate it much if you point out these features: Two bands, a big girl show, capacity for 5,000 people, no couvert charge and what's more, no minimum charge (meaning a patron doesn't have to spend $3, etc.) . . . Also that the taxi fare from Times Square is about $3, but that if patrons use a Keystone cab their fare will be paid one way . . . I heard Ruth Etting's new record of "Falling in Love Again," very pretty . . . I hear that a chap stopped Jack Osterman yesterday and offered to sell him two gags, but that Osterman said what he needed most was a stage to tell them on . . . Here's a cocktail you might recommend: One part whisky, dissolve a teaspoonful of strained honey in it. Stir this into one part chilled cream, grate a little nutmeg on it and serve . . . I call it the "Adios" and it is just that.

The Johnny Weissmullers (Bobbe Arnst) are on their way to town . . . A. J. Henderson, who was best man (and probably still is for that matter), phoned to say that the newlyweds have a present for Gloria. That is, if Gloria will see Johnny . . . Tell her for me, please, that she shouldn't . . . I never do after a guy jilts me . . . Dr. Schiff called to warn you that you'll never get tan if you keep missing your sunburn treatments, so I made an appointment for you with him for Saturday, but I didn't tell him what month! Zevver.—R. C.

CONSTANCE BENNETT LOVES AND WEEPS IN NEW FILM

By MILDRED FILLMORE

It used to be Lillian Gish who had the monopoly on the suffering. But now it is Constance Bennett. This little girl suffers more in one movie reel than most women do in a lifetime.

Right now she is at her best suffering again in "Born to Love," the new picture in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square. This is a melodrama that copies from and outdoes that ancient weepy, "East Lynne."

"Born to Love" is a picture of eternal triangles, mother love and the World War. Miss Bennett is seen as a nurse, who meets a young American soldier in London and falls in love with him on sight. They are to be married when the war is over. But, in the meantime, she is told that he is dead. He isn't, though, and he turns up again months after the Armistice to find her married and a mother.

Then follows divorce courts and all kinds of suffering until the happiness ray finds its way through the London fog.

Miss Bennett is a capable actress. There is drama in her tears and in her shrieks. But the story doesn't show very much originality and, somehow, you get the idea of something futile in so much suffering.

The supporting cast includes Joel McCrea, Paul Cavanagh, Frederick Kerr, Anthony Bushell and Louise Closser Hale.

MR. LEW AYRES TRIES THE FIGHT GAME IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Lew Ayres, back from the Western Front, and Dick Powell, back from Florida, are the big shots in the current bill in the Stanley. Mr. Powell wears cowboy pants, sings several songs and receives an applauding welcome. Mr. Ayres plays prizefighter, becomes the champion and then gets floored with a bang. And, believe it or not, a woman is the cause of it all.

The picture is titled "Iron Man," and it is about a boxer who has a wife who loves a third party. Thus there is a big dose of eternal triangle along with the prizefight atmosphere.

THAT BLONDE LADY

The wife is a blonde—and a real dizzy blonde, at that. While husband goes out and earns the bread and butter by geting black eyes, she romps in and out of barrooms lamenting that she hasn't got a big fur coat. Poor little gal!

Mr. Ayres was more effective as a soldier in "All Quiet on the Western Front" and as a gangster in "Doorway to Hell" than he is as a prizefighter. It is Robert Armstrong, as the hardboiled manager and friend, who makes the biggest impression. Jean Harlow portrays the wife.

SO THIS IS WEST!

The stage show is titled "Westward Ho." There are covered wagons and a waterfall among the scenic effects. And there are cowboy hats for everyone. Carlton Emmy turns his pack of little dogs loose for the amusement of the audience. The California Crooners croon. Queen, Queen and Queen, trio of Pittsburgh girls, dance. A comedy fellow spills patter and chatter. Lucille Peterson sings, and chorus girls step.

Mr. Broudy, in the orchestra pit, hides his face behind bolsheviki whiskers and champions the music of the old masters, while Mr. Armstrong sits by the great big organ and answers back with modern melody.

JOHN GILBERT TURNS GANGSTER IN NEW ALDINE FILM

John Gilbert, filmdom's peer of Romeos, deserts society for the role of a gentleman gangster in "Gentleman's Fate," the new screen attraction in the Aldine, and the result is not quite up to Gilbert.

Perhaps it is the story and perhaps it is something else again, but Gilbert does not seem quite in place in this role, which seethes in rum-running, a gem robbery and gang warfare. The late Louis Wolheim, however, does a rare bit of acting.

The story: The son of a bootlegger raised by a friend as a gentleman, comes back to find the truth about his kin, shelters him from a theft as he lay dying from a gangster's bullet, is spurned by his society sweetheart, then serves a term for the theft he did not commit and finds a new romance in the life of the underworld which he adopts.

Anita Page, Leila Hyams and Marie Prevost appear in supporting roles. A news reel, a cartoon comedy and "Laughing Gravey" complete the program.

VETERAN PILOT TELLS PLAN FOR OCEAN HOPS IN BROADCAST TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Europe in eight flying jumps—that's the idea of Edward R. Armstrong, veteran pilot, who has schemed to span the Atlantic Ocean with the aid of eight floating seadromes placed 380 miles apart. These seadromes would be 1,100 feet in length and six acres in area. They would provide refueling and emergency landings for passenger planes. Mr. Armstrong predicts that 1933 will see such a plan in regular use, providing oversea passage in 24 to 36 hours at a reasonable rate. Further details on KDKA at 8:15.

Maybe something bizarre, maybe something good—that's the chance one takes on "Amateur Night." KQV at 7:30.

* * *

Not since Howard Barlow interpreted the full suite so splendidly about five months ago, have we heard Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade." Walter Damrosch has selected the musical version of the "Thousand and One Nights" for WCAE entertainment at 9 o'clock.

* * *

Listeners who once kept early hours on Saturday night have been staying up until midnight lately to hear the Red Arrow Quartet, advises W. K. of Wheeling. We can't blame them . . . the Red Arrow Quartet is not only a fine singing group but is composed of princely fellows.

* * *

Hear their special arrangement on the German waltz, "After the Dance," via KDKA at 11:15. "When Moonbeams Shed Their Silvery Light" and "Do You Know My Garden" are other specialties.

QUESTION A DAY:

Where was Floyd Gibbons born and how old is he?—H. J., Tarentum.

Answer—Floyd was born in Washington, D. C. exactly 44 years ago. Your presumption about his eye is incorrect. He not only lost the sight but the eye when that piece of shrapnel nipped him. That's why the patch.

BELIEVE IN SIGNS?

A letter from Elsie Mae Gordon, the "Jane McGrew" of Hank Simmon's "Show Boat," discloses something funny that happened in the Columbia studios recently. Let Elsie tell it:

"As I told you when in Pittsburgh, we always have an audience in the studio for certain sound effects.

"Several large printed cards bearing such legends as 'Applause,' 'Cheers,' 'Hisses' and so forth, are used to give spectators their cue for action.

"Well, a quartet sang not long ago and the production manager picked up what he thought was the 'Applause' card. It turned out to be the wrong cue.

"And the audience, puzzled but obedient, responded with a hearty and prolonged 'Boo-o-o-oo.' For a few minutes the quartet felt somewhat discouraged."

STUDIO LIGHTS

Paul Gannon, "Sleepy," was mistaken for Rudy Vallee the other night . . . and spent 15 minutes trying to convince a listener on the telephone that it was all a mistake . . .

After hearing the Lawson Sisters and Kay Kronick in trio formation we feel happy that Pittsburgh has at last produced an enviable crooning outfit . . .

Lew Conrad gets along on five hours sleep . . . Morton Downey eats a pint of ice cream at a sitting . . . and Tom Riggs, who cleverly impersonates "Betty" for "Riggs and Moke," once played quarterback at Brown University . . .

Al Machesney, chief engineer of WJAS, and Bob Machesney, editor of the "Pitt Weekly," are cousins.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

"You can't kill a reporter!"—the highlight of a newspaper film that played downtown last week—seemed to arouse the curiosity of Lloyd C. Thomas at the Advertising Club dinner. While we were away from the radio table gathering balloons for Percy Boyd to puncture with his fork, Lloyd filled our consomme with cubes of sugar and plenty of condiments. Very unsuspectingly we consumed the soup in time to catch the next course. The soup had a queer taste. Later we had a queer feeling. The fact that we lived through it all seems to have proved something or other to Mr. Thomas — perhaps that newspapermen are too tough to kill.

Pattern 1978

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Here is a smart little model combining cleverly styled lines with smart simplicity. The attractive revers and collar lend a tailored note that is lovely on a wash silk or cotton frock. The curved lines of bodice and skirt add the necessary feminine touch. Pattern 1978 may be fashioned of silk shirting, shantung, ratine, rajah, pique or crepe de chine in print, white or a pastel shade. Sleeves are included with the pattern.

Obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39-inch fabric. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE NEW SPRING AND SUMMER PATTERN CATALOG features an excellent assortment of afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes, also delightful Accessory Patterns. Damage Immense In Bombay Blaze

BOMBAY, India, May 2.—(AP.)—Fire which started Thursday in the Moslem quarter was brought under control yesterday. Damage was expected to be less than the $1,500,000 previously announced. Several persons were injured.

THE LOUDSPEAKER :-: By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 2.—The television eye may be on Broadway but Broadway also has its eye on television. Broadway has availed itself, much to the delight of its press agents, of the opportunity to be a part of New York's first regular television broadcasting program.

For two and a half hours a parade of performers passed before the television cameraman, a parade that seemed to include everybody from the "Lord" of "The Green Pastures" to a circus clown putting on his make-up.

Crowded into the corridors of the town's first television studio in the upper and swankier reaches of Fifth avenue, were stars whose weekly incomes have been known to touch five figures, no end of subordinate stage personalities, playwrights and novelists, radio poobahs, theatrical managers, with bewilderment written clearly on their faces; cartoonists, even an editorial writer or two. Not one of them received a thin dime for their services. But what price space!

* * *

Only a dismal Sunday afternoon could have brought them out in such profusion, Sunday with its freedom from strange routine. The television directors, in arranging their programs, wisely selected Sunday as the best day to get off to a good start. And it was a good start.

It was a good start that would bring such outstanding names of the theater as William Faversham, Maurice Chevalier, Jacob Ben Ami, Roark Bradford, Helen Morgan, Richard B. Harrison, Queenie Smith, Harry Richman and such stars of the newspaper world as Bugs Baer, Milt Gross, Harry Hershfield, Russ Westover, Ted Cook and Nell Brinkley to New York's first television entertainment.

* * *

Not only were the performers aware of the vast publicity value of the program, they were quick to seize the opportunity to learn what, if any, television personality they possessed. They, like the managers, may not know what it is all about, but they intend to find out and be ready when television sits on the throne of American amusements.

More people crowded about receiving sets in a specially designated room in Aeolian Hall than could have witnessed and heard it in the privacy of their homes—it is said there are 350 owners of television sets in the metropolitan area. Among those present, we noticed, was Lee Shubert. The head of the largest theatrical firm in America apparently does not intend to be caught napping when television has become the order of the entertainment day.

* * *

The program, presented by Jenkins television Station W2XCR in co-operation with the broadcasting Station WGBS, reflects courage and enterprise on the part of its sponsors. In the face of much discouragement, of considerable shushing by radio bigwigs they dared to bring television out of the laboratory and make it available to the home, make it available with famous theatrical names. They did not consider possible confusion over regular radio programs and advertising contracts. They seemingly had tired of the eternal predictions that television was a year, two years, five year away.

* * *

Their move will be closely watched in the amusement world. It may speed up action by other radio stations in starting television broadcasts on June 1; it may cause the guarded laboratory doors at Camden to open sooner. It may cause an abandonment of the plan of microphone high priests to forestall television broadcasting until it had reached the stage of perfection of present-day radio broadcasting.

* * *

The pictures are still small—they appear to be about six inches square—but they are clear and distinguishable and several persons may enjoy a program at the same time. Improvement has been made during the last year in the facility with which television cameramen are able to switch from bust pictures to semi-lengths and close-ups.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
"Public Improvements Promote Progress"
Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Bridge No. 2 was constructed by the County because of the necessity of carrying Saw Mill Run Boulevard under the tracks of the railroad. The structure is of reinforced concrete and steel construction. Steel columns, set near the edge of the curbs of the highway, support steel girders which carry reinforced concrete slabs for the 40-foot railroad right of way. Sidewalks are provided outside the supporting columns on each side of the boulevard. The length of the underpass is 165 feet and the inside width of the structure, including the two sidewalks, is 56 feet.
This bridge work was included in the Saw Mill Run Boulevard contract, awarded to John F. Casey Company. The source of funds was the 1928 Peoples Bond Issue. The work was completed during July, 1930, and the estimated physical cost of the underpass was $165,450.21.

STEEL OUTPUT LOWER FOR WEEK

More Conservative View Of Situation Prompted By Week's Developments

By B. E. V. LUTY

A more conservative view of the steel trade situation is prompted by developments of the week, in two separate respects. First-quarter earnings statements issued in the week show poorer results than would be estimated from known facts as to tonnage and prices during the quarter, and both demand and production decreased farther in the week, reducing or dispelling hopes recently entertained that the decrease might be arrested or even succeeded by an increase.

Substantial decreases in total earnings from the December to the March quarter were not indicated by the facts as known during the period. In this report of three weeks ago the facts were reviewed briefly and it was said: "No more than small increases in earnings can be expected." Bethlehem makes a showing in line with that remark, reporting total earnings 2 per cent above those in the December quarter, but the Steel Corporation shows 16 per cent decrease and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation 25 per cent decrease, comparison in each case being made after taxes but before interest, depreciation and depletion.

SHIPMENTS UP 10 PER CENT

There was 15.4 per cent increase in steel ingot production from the one quarter to the next, as shown by the official reports. Quite likely finished steel shipments did not increase altogether as much, but there can hardly be doubt as to the increase amounting to at least 10 per cent. Substantially all the steel market declines of the year had gotten out into trade paper quotations by October 1, and only a relatively small part of fourth-quarter shipments could have been invoiced at old prices, above those current on October 1. Rails and tin plate are among the distinctly profitable lines and shipments of both increased sharply from the December to the March quarter. Unit costs should have decreased a trifle if there were any change at all.

SPECIAL FACTORS

It is made clear that there were unknown factors entering into the matter, of special character as they applied to only one of the quarters, either helping the December quarter or injuring the March quarter. Accordingly, one must be reserved in attempting to forecast financial results of the current quarter, as there may be a case of a temporarily adverse influence of the March quarter being withdrawn for the current quarter. Otherwise a slight further decrease would be indicated, for the present outlook is that steel production will be lower by a small amount, probably less than 5 per cent, while at a couple points, in sheets and strips, prices are a little lower. In bars, shapes and plates advanced prices are being quoted, but it will take time for them to work out into invoice prices on shipments.

INGOT OUTPUT OFF

In the steel industry as a whole ingot production in the past week has been at about 48 per cent of capacity, representing a couple points loss from the preceding week and about eight points from the peak rate, just after the middle of March. Continuance of the recent rate of decrease is certainly not to be expected for it has averaged one and one-third points a week, and arithmetically that would make a low in early July equal to that of last December, whereas there were special conditions then, as to liquidation all along the line, which could not be repeated. No more than a little farther decrease is to be expected. Mills are not particularly concerned about that, for any operation under, say, 60 per cent is unfavorable and there is not much difference in degree. The hope is that there will be a substantial recovery after the usual dull summer season.

STEEL OUTPUT CUT PROPOSED

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 2.—(AP.)—Possibility of stabilizing the steel industry through voluntary restraint of production in individual mills so that production and selling would be equal to the going demand was held as a solution of the industry's problems by E. P. Thomas, of New York, vice president of the United States Steel Corporation. He spoke at the three-day meeting of the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers.

Thomas asked the point of increasing the use of steel "if every additional ton sold means further financial loss?" He said he was opposed to liquidation of labor.

Thomas' address followed that of William Humphrey, of the Federal Trade Commission, and that of F. G. Gifford, of the Acme Steel Company, of Chicago. Gifford said architects in the Chicago territory had a passive attitude toward the use of steel in buildings and that because of that the use of steel in the Middle West had "lagged considerably."

The young woman was said to have quarreled with her mother, Mrs. Anna Schiminski, when her parent visited her.

Stocks of Wheat Estimated Lower

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Stocks of wheat in interior mills and elevators on April 1, 1931, are estimated at 71,208,000 bushels by the crop reporting board of the Agriculture Department, comparing with 82,840,000 bushels on March 1. Stocks as of March 1, 1930, were 100,349,000 bushels and on March 1, 1929, 84,707,000 bushels.

March Petroleum Production Higher

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Production of crude oil in the United States during March amounted to 69,397,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,239,000 barrels, the Bureau of Mines announced. This represents an increase in daily average of 73,000 barrels over the previous month.

Landslide Damages Beaver Road Home

A landslide, estimated at more than 100 tons, damaged the porch of the home of John Murray, chief engineer at the Dixmont Hospital power plant, early today. Six feet of earth was piled up against the Murray home, near Fair Oaks station, on Beaver road. The road was not blocked.

Week Discouraging for General Business

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE PAST WEEK has been a discouraging period for business. The bad news was published about earnings of leading corporations for the first quarter of the year. Following the failure of two members of the New York Stock Exchange, stock prices were engaged in precipitate declines. The combination of these factors produced one of the most profound states of gloom since the final months of 1929.

The favorable developments of the week included the declaration of a regular dividend by the United States Steel Corporation and the continuation of usual payments by several of the leading companies in the Standard Oil group.

The fact that these large corporations have been willing to dip into surplus to continue dividend payments may be interpreted as evidence of the belief that the bottom of the depression has been reached and that an upward turn is expected before the close of the present year.

No Immediate Change Forecast

EXCEPT IN THE CASES of a few companies, no improvement in earnings is expected during the second quarter of the present year. Business in general has been jogging along at a pace only a little more rapid than at the close of 1930 when the depression reached its lowest level. In most industries there is no evidence upon which to base any reasonable prediction of an improvement before the close of the present summer.

This means that second-quarter profits of more corporations are not likely to be better than those of the first quarter. Seasonal elements will be brought to bear in many industries during the third quarter. It is in that period that the next test of the future of business will be found. If gains next fall exceed seasonable proportions, there will be reason to believe that a turn in the business situation is taking place.

Annual Earnings Uncertain

THERE IS STILL TIME for a change to take place in business activity which would establish industry's 1931 earnings at higher levels than those of 1930, but there has been little tangible evidence on which such a hope can be based.

Even if the close of the coming summer is marked by substantial gains in business activity, industrial earnings in the last two quarters of the year will have to show a very pronounced change to overcome the results of the first half of the year.

The depression has extended to even greater lengths than the most cautious observers predicted at the close of 1929. The fact that industrial activity has been in a drifting condition during most of the time since the close of 1930 may be an indication that the depression has run through its full extent and that the next pronounced trend will be in an upward direction.

Automobile Production

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT SHOWED a seasonal increase in April. Production substantially exceeded March but recent purchases of steel and glass indicate that some recession probably will be reported for May.

Hopes for recovery have also been pinned on the building industry but recent figures fail to indicate that increases reported early in the year are being continued.

Nearly all signs indicate that business will continue its drifting course through the summer months.

INTERNATIONAL ADDS NEW TRUCK

Improved A-2 Model Has Greater Horsepower; Gets Good Reception

The International Harvester Company announces and now has on display at its showroom, 5200 Penn avenue, a new model A-2 truck of one and one-half ton capacity, which has been received by International dealers and customers with much enthusiasm. Its low price is particularly appealing especially as this model is built to typical International standards.

The new model is being shown in two wheelbases. The 136-inch wheelbase is adaptable to light delivery and dump work and the 160-inch wheelbase for large stake bodies and for fast freight hauling.

IMPROVED ENGINE

Some of the outstanding improvements over the former one and a half-ton model are an increase of nine horsepower in the new four-cylinder engine with a 3⅜-inch bore by 4½-inch stroke making a displacement area of 185.6 cubic inches, an increase of 7 per cent over the previous model. Water pump circulation, with pump incorporated, at forward end of cylinder head is now regular equipment on the new engine. Connecting rods are drilled for delivery of lubricating oil, under pressure, to piston pins. The piston pins have been increased in diameter 50 per cent. An improved cylinder head of higher compression ratio and greater turbulence factor is used. A new carburetor of balanced flow type, carefully developed to suit the new engine, is used.

Torque, the turning effort at crankshaft, which is the most important functional characteristic of engines for truck work, has been increased 20 per cent above the maximum torque of the former model. The improved engine develops maximum torque at 1,000 r. p. m., thereby making it possible for the new chassis to negotiate long grades at higher speeds with less need for use of low and intermediate gear ratios of transmissions.

TRANSMISSION CHANGED

Maximum horse power has been increased 27 per cent and the speed at maximum horse power output has been increased to 2,400 r. p. m., with the improved engine. It develops 39 brake horse power.

The A-2 is equipped with four-speed transmission, fully adequate for long life and severe service. It affords four selective ratios for forward drive and one for reverse. It has suitable side openings for power take-off attachment and is a thoroughly tried and proven unit.

Nominations Made By Traffic League

The executive committee of the Traffic and Transportation Association, at its monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last night, announced nominees for offices to be voted on at a meeting in the Keystone Athletic Club next month. They were selected from a membership of 1,000.

Nominees for president were M. D. Perry, of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Company, and V. C. Vickochil, of the Pittsburgh Underwriters' Association, and for vice president, C. W. Abel, of the Luckenbach Lines, and G. E. Greer, of the Union Pacific system.

SAYS PLEASING OFFICE IS ASSET

Business Men Here Slow To Realize Importance Of Tasteful Background

Pittsburgh business men are slow to realize the importance of providing the proper background of good taste and dignity in office furnishings, according to Russell Mitchell, Jr., of Mitchell Cook, Inc., Koppers Building. In these days of rush and hurry, they have become resigned to standardized office equipment.

But the wise organization, Mr. Mitchell believes, is beginning to count the cost of a discouraging mechanistic office atmosphere. He said:

IMPRESS CLIENTS

"I feel that many Pittsburgh executives are aware of the unattractiveness of their office surroundings, but have accepted it because they do not realize that without any sacrifice to the inherent dignity of a business office they can make their surroundings a real business asset."

Tasteful office furnishings, Mr. Mitchell is convinced, not only neutralize the metallic effect of a modern business organization, but provide a general aura of prosperity and wellbeing, a quiet evidence of culture which cannot fail to impress clients favorably.

LESSENS STRAIN

Period furniture in a businessman's office-home, where he probably spends from one-fourth to one-third of his life, is a comparatively recent innovation. Beauty of surroundings helps to lessen the strain of the fast pace of a busy day on jaded nerves. It improves the morale of the employes of an organization to move and work in an atmosphere of quiet dignity and beauty.

The Mitchell Cook Company is probably the only firm in Pittsburgh to recognize the possibility of executive office furniture as a business, not as a side line. Their service is chiefly of value to the businessman who realizes that redecoration in the new mode is a manifestation of executive responsibility.

STEEL PLATE BOOKINGS OFF

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Orders for commercial steel castings during March totaled 46,638 tons, against 40,292 tons in February and 122,462 tons in March, 1930. Output during the month totaled 54,714 tons, against 49,520 tons in February and 113,463 tons in March, 1930, according to the Department of Commerce.

Orders for malleable castings totaled 33,855 tons, against 32,566 tons in February and 86,744 tons in March, 1930. Production figures were 35,039 tons, 33,587 tons and 83,365 tons, respectively.

Bookings for fabricated steel plate during the month totaled 31,056 tons, against 24,438 tons and 55,016 tons, respectively.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

WISE LEADERS CAPITALIZING NEW ORDER

Prudent Procedure Would Be for Management to Make Candid Reports

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 2.—It took the disappointment incidental to a falling off of corporate profits during the present depression to rouse small stockholders from their apathy.

Under present conditions, stockholder revolts, including court actions, are under way in at least 10 companies.

Instead of resenting the new and critical attitude of outside stockholders who are beginning to sense the power behind ownership, wise executives will seek to capitalize it. Prudent procedure would be for presidents of companies, desiring to prevent overt conflict based on ignorance, to send out special reports to shareholders setting forth candidly how management is seeking to conserve the interests of stockholders under existing conditions.

Mr. Rukeyser.

NEW STANDARDS

A few of the more progressive executives have already proceeded in this direction. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors Corporation, has set new high standards in the fullness and promptness of corporate reports. In preparation for the annual meeting on May 5, Mr. Sloan fully set forth matters of moment under the heading "An Operating Review," in which he discussed "management policies."

Other executives should follow suit and exercise leadership at this time, when uninformed stockholders are subject to the gossip of superficial pessimists, who are as unreasonable as the same men were in the roles of "new era" optimists before the panic.

OVERDO SILENCE

And, in passing, it should be said that houses of issue in Wall street are overdoing the policy of silence.

They could perhaps in part offset the damage to their good will which comes from shrinkage in the price of securities which they distributed to investors if they would follow through and make an effort to get authoritative data concerning such securities which could be passed along to their individual and dealer clients.

Underwriters cannot be expected to open up an umbrella to hold over their security creations against major financial storms, but they could at least be useful in helping those who bought on their representations to get abreast of tangible developments.

'Popeye' Ready for Rough House War

Never until now has the star performer of Thimble Theater had enough fighting for his taste. He cracked the Adenoid Islands into pieces with his amazing tactics on the battle field in "The Great Rough House War." What's ordinary artillery besides POPEYE'S "fisks"? Don't miss E. C. Segar's explosively funny strip in the Sun-Telegraph Monday, starting a new and thrilling episode in the life of "Popeye."

Yes, "Popeye" is also in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph full page of fun in colors.

INSTALLS NEW ELECTRIC DEVICES

Marshall Brothers Has Electric Control for Moving Gondola Cars

The Marshall Brothers Company has just completed additional installations of its special equipment for opening and closing garage and warehouse doors. The devices are fully controlled by electric push buttons.

A recently added feature to this equipment is an arrangement which automatically stops and returns the door to full open position should it meet with any obstruction in its descent.

DEMAND GAINS

The company has an increasing demand for electric push button dumb waiters. One of the large local stores has 23 and another 16 installations of this type. Many homes, hospitals and restaurants also are equipped with Marshall quick service waiters.

A department for making electrical controls has been in successful operation in the Marshall plant for some time. Among the unusual controls recently installed is a device for moving gondola freight cars. The cars are loaded with slag and started at full speed by the pressing of a button in the power room. The cars are then automatically slowed down as they approach the grinding room and are automatically unloaded and returned to the yards for reloading.

The Marshall Brothers Company also manufactures electric sidewalk elevators of all sizes and capacities fully equipped with waterproof covers which are automatically opened and closed by the movement of the elevator.

The Marshall offices and plant were formerly located on Diamond street, but are now on Twenty-first street, South Side.

PLATE GLASS OUTPUT UP

Both production and shipments of plate glass are in improved volume, reflecting the increased activity by automobile manufacturers, according to American Glass Review. In other branches of the flat glass industry the situation continues virtually without change. Demand for window glass, however, has developed a little more strength than was shown at the beginning of last month.

Conditions in the plate glass field, as for some weeks past, are relatively better than in other sections of the flat glass industry. Large orders placed recently by the automobile industry have resulted in increased operations at both the plate and laminated glass plants of leading producers. Production of plate glass during April and this month, as a consequence, is expected to show a gain over a year ago. Even so, the demand for this product is running somewhat below the average for normal years of the past. The jobbing trade has not been showing much activity and orders from mirror manufacturers have also been in light seasonal volume.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, May 2.

AS A SAMPLE of Broadway love, I don't think you can top this yarn. Charley Bragg, of the Fifth Avenue Theater, insists that it actually happened. And I see no reason to doubt the word of such a charming gentleman.

The girl was a chorine in a show. The boy was a minor principal. Her salary ran to about $40 a week, his to about $60. She didn't claim to be any lily and he was content to accept her as she was. They went out together several times after the show. Soon it grew to be a familiar thing. Before either one knew what had happened, they found themselves in love. At least that was the name they gave it.

Soon they talked of marriage. The boy was very sensible about it.

"Look, honey," he said. "We understand each other pretty well. You've been over the bumps and I have a slight idea of what it's all about on my own account.

"If we two get married, we can't miss. If you make a mistake or two, I'll be broad enough to forget it. And I know you'll do the same. So how can we go wrong?

"What do you say, kid? Will we tie up for better or for worse?"

The girl shrugged her shoulders.

"Well," she replied, "I can't see why not. You might as well be the fall guy as long as you're in the mood. When will we make the big hour?"

"Right away," returned the boy. "This afternoon."

"Whoa," chirped the girl, "not so fast. Let's take our time about this thing. After all, a young girl has to be careful these days. Let's make it two months from today. Right now, we're engaged."

"Okay," said the boy affably. "That makes everything jake with me."

So much for your modern engagement on the big street . . .

It wasn't more than three or four nights later that the chorine met a money man. This gentleman was one of those birds you read about in the Broadway novels that are written in Madison, Wis. He had plenty of coin and, more important, was very willing to spend it. Furthermore, he wasn't far from 60.

The money man fell for the girl like a pedestrian for a speeding taxi. He saw her three or four times and finally grew so reckless that he asked her to marry him. She didn't say yes. But she most certainly didn't say no.

In such a position, there were but two things the girl could do. She could either ask the other girls for advice or she could call up Winchell. Not knowing Winchell, she took the other step and told the other chorines.

Practically all of them gave her the same steer.

"Don't be a chump," they told her. "Marry the old guy with the dough. Do you have to go around asking for advice in a case like this?

"What are you going to get with the other fellow? A wedding, a couple of heartaches and a divorce. You'll get the same thing with the money man—except that he'll get the heartaches and the divorce. And the other big difference is that you'll have plenty of coin.

"Don't be a sap. Do as we tell you."

That night the girl gave the rich man her answer. She said she'd marry him. But she was decent about it. She told him about the boy and asked the wealthy gent how she was to break the news.

He pondered the situation for a moment. Then he suggested that she give him $1,000 in cash to soothe the boy's wounded heart. The girl hesitated.

"He might not take it," she murmured. "Maybe it'll hurt his feelings if I did such a thing. Do you think it would be all right?"

The elderly gentleman was quite positive. He took the girl to his bank, drew forth $1,000 in $10 bills and handed them to the girl he loved.

"When you tell him," he remarked wisely, "tell him with these. You have no idea how effective they can be."

The girl was still dubious.

"Well," she said, "I'll do as you say, daddykins. But I'm not so sure I'm doing the right thing. You don't think he'll take a sock at me, do you?"

"If he does," replied the money man, angrily, "he will answer to me."

"That'll certainly do me a lot of good," said the girl. . . .

Now, it so happened that the boy had already heard rumors of what was going on. I don't know whether you know it, but nothing in the world can spread faster than a little scandal in a theatrical troupe. So the boy was pretty well prepared when the girl spoke to him the next night.

"Take me up to your house for a drink after the show tonight, darling," she cooed. "There's something I want to tell you."

"Yeah," said the boy, "what is it?"

"You'll find out, honey," she returned, "after the show."

So we find them next in the boy's apartment. And we discover the girl fishing for the proper words.

"It's not that I don't love you better than that other mug," she explained tenderly. "I sure do. But he's got so much dough, honey. He bathes in it."

The boy leaped to his feet. He began to talk in movie titles.

"Here I have loved you so," he shouted dramatically. "I have been willing to sacrifice things so that you might be happy. And now you come and tell me that all has been in vain. Oh, what have you done to my heart?"

The girl began to quiver. She dug into her pocket and drew forth a roll of bills.

"He—he—he told me to give you this $1,000," she said. "He said it might help you forget."

She placed the bills on a nearby table. The boy wheeled.

"So," he roared. "I am to be given money for losing the girl I adored. I am to be bribed in the very filthiest fashion, am I? I am to become the lowest kind of a man."

He choked and pointed to the door.

"Get out of here. Get out before I forget myself. I never want to see you again. Leave me alone with my broken heart."

The girl walked out. The door slammed . . .

On her way home, she cried bitterly. She knew now that she had done a very wrong thing. She knew now that this boy loved her with a tender devotion. She knew that she belonged to him.

The more she thought, the more she realized her mistake. What was money as compared to this great love? Soon her mind was made up. She raced up the stairs to her little apartment and threw off her coat and hat. She ran to the phone. She was going to call her boy and go back to him.

Before she reached it, her phone rang. She answered it. Her heart gave a great bounce. It was her boy calling her. Her boy!

"Yes, darling," she breathed. "I was just——"

"Don't darling me," he cried. "What kind of a game are you playing on me anyhow? There's no $1,000 here. You're $10 short."

Soviet Concedes a Point

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Soviet seems to have weakened in its attempted standardization of human binks.

It switches back on the road to capitalistic normalcy when it instructs its factories to pay piecework. No two men are alike, as the Soviet discovered. The only successful twins were the Siamese.

Put 1,000 men on the same job and you will get 1,000 different actions and reactions. If they didn't they would be marionettes and not men.

In that case you wouldn't have to pay them and your only expense would be for the string to dangle them.

No two men do the same thing in the same way. One must get ahead of the other. Complete proof of this is that somebody actually wins our Madison Square six-day bike races.

Which is about as standardized a contest as even the Soviet could wish for.

We concede the Russians made a very interesting experiment.

But we are glad they made it with Russians.

If you want synchronized motions, gestures and clicking you can get them with machinery. If we all did the same thing we would be baby dolls, if we all thought alike we would be on school boards, and if we were all round we would be polka dots.

If Stalin says all men are alike then why is Stalin different? If all the tin soldiers are made of the same material why does one shine more than the rest?

There are stragglers in victory as well as stragglers in retreat.

And the Soviet discovered that it COULDN'T slow up the winners in their efforts to get to the front because the slower boys wanted to favor their bunions.

Napoleon won all his victories with the men who got there.

1931 BUSINESS FAILURES

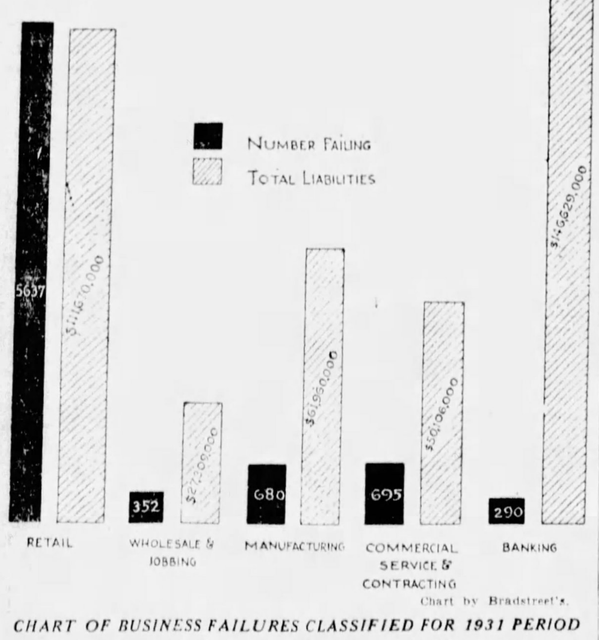

CHART OF BUSINESS FAILURES CLASSIFIED FOR 1931 PERIOD

Chart showing failure and liability totals for the first quarter of 1931, proving that retail failures were 73.6 per cent off the total number and accounted for 28.3 per cent of the total liabilities as compared with 4.6 per cent wholesale failures accounting for 6.9 per cent of the liabilities, 8.9 per cent manufacturers' failures accounting for 15.6 per cent of the liabilities, 9.1 per cent commercial service and contracting company failures accounting for 12.2 per cent, and 3.8 bank failures accounting for 38.9 per cent of liabilities.

RETAIL SALES IN LOWER VOLUME

Little Improvement Shown In Building Construction; Collections Still Slow

Weather conditions the first half of the week were not very favorable and retail sales have been in lower volume than last week, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. The jobbing trade in wearing apparel lines has also been less active.

Building construction has thus far shown comparatively little improvement and still averages materially lower than last year at this time. Demand for lumber and other building materials continues to drag and prices of lumber are averaging about 25 per cent lower than a year ago. Considerable road and municipal construction work has been held up, but bids are now being received on a big volume of work in those lines which should stimulate demand for cement and similar products. Grocery trade is only fair with prices averaging about 15 per cent lower than last April.

COAL OUTPUT LOW

Some rather large orders have been placed for electrical equipment, but jobbers report demand for fixtures, etc., is quiet. A moderate increase in crude oil production is reported and there have been further slight reductions in prices paid to producers.

Production of bituminous coal continues to drop and last week's output is estimated at between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 tons, the lowest rate for the year.

The general average of collections with jobbers continues to average from fair to slow, although some lines report a slight improvement.

BUSINESS INDEX UP SLIGHTLY

NEW YORK, May 2.—The persistently static condition of business contrasts with continued declines in commodity and security markets. The index, at 78.8 per cent of normal for the week ended April 25, still lingers around the levels of the beginning of the year, with slight fluctuations of no significance. This compares with 78.1 per cent in the preceding week and 93.9 per cent in the corresponding week last year, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

The decline in steel activity seems to have slackened slightly this week, but the seasonal drop from March has been a bit sharper than usual, and prices continue to weaken. Building is not holding up well, but there is still some slight encouragement in the residential field. Carloadings, especially in merchandise and miscellaneous commodities, have made a better showing this week and support other indications of slightly quickened trade activity. But there is still no sign on the horizon of any large-scale action from any source sufficiently strong to offset the certainty of a stagnant summer. National business meetings promise no program.

COMPANY HERE ADDS PRODUCT

Housewives who despair of keeping their hardwood floors as bright and shining as they would like to have them will be grateful to know that their floor problems can be quickly solved with a new liquid wax, Dri-Brite, which dries in 18 minutes with a hard glossy finish.

The Janitors' Supply Company, 301 Market street, Pittsburgh, has recently added the distribution of this remarkable product to their long list of modern efficiencies for homes and office buildings.

This company, known in Pittsburgh for over 30 years as a reliable institutional supply house, has installed a new service in the form of a floor department, which specializes in the treatment of all types of floors in public buildings and institutions.

In addition, they have added to their staff a representative who specializes in industrial accounts.

Steel Break Hurts.
Upturn Hailed Near.
Power Revenues Off.

—By Wall Street Spectator—

NEW YORK, May 2.

THE ABRUPT termination of the recovery after but a day and a half of rising prices once more threw into confusion the near term prospects of the market. Unquestionably the drastic break in U. S. Steel to a new low for the decline was a particularly unsettling factor, as in the space of an hour prices receded almost to their week's low points, dissipating the greater portion of the gains chalked up in the full session Thursday.

This again brings up for deciphering the relative position of U. S. Steel as compared with the market as a whole. With the prospect of a dubious earnings outlook for the remainder of the year there is no reason why this stock should continue to occupy its former role of pace-setter for the entire list, either on the up or downside.

THE STEEL industry has been pointed out to be one of the last to feel the effects of a depression as shown by the fact that in the 1920 setback, it was almost two years after the turn of the tide, in 1923, before U. S. Steel was able to recover its earning power.

Lest pessimism again become too prevalent, the attitude of a prominent statistical service at this time is pertinent. It takes the position that a turn in general business is close at hand and that considerable improvement will be evident before the year ends, pointing out that this is the most optimistic attitude which it has taken in almost two years.

The probabilities favor the commencement of the upturn to begin in early summer and to be quite apparent by fall.

ACCORDING TO a survey completed by the National Electric Light Association, revenues received by the electric light and power industry have been declining steadily since 1922. In that year, electric light and power enterprises received 21.3c from the consuming public for each dollar invested in plant and equipment.

In 1926, this had dropped to 18.5c and in 1929 to 17.6c. This is largely the result of increasing costs of facilities for reaching the consumer in the less densely settled regions.

SILVER MARKET IN BETTER BALANCE

Limited Supplies Just Meeting Daily Demand; China Is Steady Buyer

NEW YORK, May 2.—In the past several days the silver market has displayed a stable tendency with price fluctuations limited to about one-quarter of a cent an ounce in either direction. Silver dealers report that China is a consistent buyer, but the purchases are being made in such a way as to prevent undue price changes. India is said to have little influence at the moment, as demand from that quarter is negligible, while practically no sales are reported for Indian account.

The supply continues to be limited, and daily offerings from the producers are just sufficient to meet demand, while on occasion dealers have difficulty in filling orders. As far as can be learned, there have been no supplies of "other silver" thrown upon the market thus far this year.

OUTPUT DECLINING

"Other silver" constitutes mostly government sales, such as Indian, or offerings from the Continent of demonetized metal. From time to time, there have been reports of Indian selling, but careful checking by reliable authorities has failed to substantiate the rumors.

Statistically, the position of silver has improved considerably since the first of the year. The low price prevailing for several months past together with the drop in the price of metals associated with silver, such as lead, copper and zinc, and the decrease in the production of these base metals, is now resulting in a decided decline in the output of silver.

CANADA SHOWS GAIN

Canada is the only country showing an increase in production as compared with the first quarter of 1930, according to the monthly report of the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. The output of the principal producing countries in the first quarter compared with that in the corresponding period a year ago follows:

	1931.	1930.
United States	10,229,000	14,912,000
Canada	5,153,000	4,655,000
Mexico	13,695,000	18,594,000
Peru	3,021,000	4,491,000
Australia	2,056,000	2,156,000
Burma	1,070,000	1,217,000
Total	30,423,000	37,153,000

Two months only. March figures not available.

STATE BANKING RESOURCES UP

HARRISBURG, May 2.—Resources of state banking institutions as of March 25 showed an increase of $36,205,537 as compared with the figure for the corresponding period of last year, the State Banking Department announced. The resources on March 25 were $3,693,382,421 as compared with $3,657,176,884 on March 17, 1930.

Loans of the institutions as a whole have been decreased $162,106,563 and investments in bonds have increased $173,740,610, showing a gradual growth in the building of a secondary reserve. EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Decline | Local Market Recedes

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES ON DOWNGRADE

Westinghouse Electric Sags—U. S. Steel Opens Steady; Bethlehem Off

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—The stock market was still on the downgrade as trading was resumed today. Such issues as American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Hudson, Fox, New York Central and DuPont lost 1 to 1½ points. New Haven dropped 2½. U. S. Steel opened unchanged, but Bethlehem sagged ½. Johns Manville opened up ½, and Eastman rallied 1¼.

WEIR DEFENDS PRESENT WAGE

Belief that the steel industry in general has seen its low point and is beginning in a small way to mend was expressed today by Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel Corporation, prior to sailing for Europe. He said:

"Improvement in consumption is still small, but it is on the increase. Some very large consuming interests have recently expressed their confidence that the low point in general business has been passed.

"The low earnings of the steel companies in no way justify any reduction in wages. Any reduction would probably merely be passed along in the form of lower prices. Large buyers of steel are entirely satisfied with prices, which means that they are as low as is necessary to stimulate competition. Our largest customers are all opposed to wage cuts, even though they would result in lower steel prices."

LAKE IRON ORE SHIPPING UP

CLEVELAND, May 2.—(AP.)—Ore shipping on the Great Lakes from the Lake Superior region in April was greater than during the same month a year ago, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association says in its monthly report.

During the month just closed shipment tonnage was 175,921, while during the same period last year it was 107,559. More than half last month's ore was from the three Superior docks, while the remainder was from Escanaba and Marquette. No ore came during April from Ashland, Duluth or Two Harbors.

Bulk of the ore went to Lake Michigan docks where reserves are not so plentiful. It has been predicted that ore movements would be late getting under way this year and that only about 41,000,000 tons would be shipped, a figure considerably under that of 1930.

Stockholders O. K. Saxet Acquisition

NEW YORK, May 2.—Stockholders of the Saxet Company have approved acquisition from the Moody-Seagraves Company of all the common stock of the Argus Production Company and Western Production Company. In the transaction Saxet acquires control of 466,000 acres of natural gas holdings in the Hugoton field in Southwest Kansas and Western Oklahoma. In addition Saxet obtained an 87½ per cent interest in the Missouri Valley Gas Company.

Business Failures Lower for Week

NEW YORK, May 2.—Commercial failures in the United States during the past week decreased substantially, in line with the usual seasonal tendency, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. The total was 532, compared with 612 in the previous week. The total, however, remains above the total of 472 reported for the corresponding period last year.

Oil Firm Defendant In Patent Suit

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—Pacific Western Oil Corporation and Pacific Western Oil Company have been made defendants in a suit involving $1,500,000 in alleged infringement of patents on submarine derrick construction by Charles L. Roberts, in U. S. District Court.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Nobody Believes Man Who Is Always Boasting

He's a Great Guy.

He admits it himself!

But he's afraid the world won't know it unless he broadcasts the fact . . . so the minute he gets in a crowd he grabs the spotlight and begins . . .

Wherefore Betty's getting so fed up she could scream . . . and so's everybody else.

Talks About Himself

"Would you marry a guy like that, if you were me?" she asks, "or would you give him the air? He just gets mad when I try to talk to him about it—"

Ever seen a chap like that? Sure you have! And what ails 'em?

Listen!

"Dear Miss Martin:

"Will you please help me? Maybe I'm silly to make such a fuss over my problem, but, honestly, it's getting to be a regular mountain to me.

"I am engaged to a young man who is really wonderful in every way but one, and that is he knows how wonderful he is! He is terribly conceited and is always telling me . . . and anyone else who'll listen, how grand he is. He talks so much about himself that his whole conversation is 'I—I—I' all the time, but his 'I' stuff's getting terribly monotonous.

"I try to talk to him about this boasting, but it always ends in a quarrel. Only the other day I asked him why he liked to talk about himself so much, and he said he was wonderful and he couldn't help it! When I tried to tell him he should keep it to himself, he became very angry and it ended in another terrible quarrel. We have made up—but what's the use? There's not a time we go out that we don't quarrel over his ego.

Getting on Her Nerves

"Shall I go on and marry him in spite of it? Or will it ruin my happiness? I do love him, but he is getting on my nerves terribly, talking about himself continuously the way he does. Please help me to decide.

"WORRIED BETTY."

So he's just wonderful and can't help it, is he? And he has to tell the world, so it'll appreciate him? Well, he may be able to put that idea over on himself . . . but I think I can give you a better tip on the situation.

Why is he putting on his big front? Because he "knows he's wonderful?" No . . . Because he suspects, in his secret heart, that he isn't such a grand climax . . . and he's making a desperate effort to convince himself . . . and Other Folks . . . that this secret fear isn't true.

And is he succeeding? Is that the way to prove you're a big time guy?

Boasting Is Foolish

Just one minute of sane, sensible thought should convince the dimmest of dimwits that it isn't. Even if he were as wonderful as he claims, such boasting would be the stupidest kind of foolishness, because nobody believes the fellow who toots his own horn, no matter how good he is. And the only impression the tooter makes on folks is to give them a longing to kick him and show him up for a liar. No really smart guy ever two-times himself that way.

And now—shall you marry him? Well, honey, not unless he's willing to get next to himself. Because, if you did, you'd inevitably grow to despise him, and no marriage can endure if one partner in it despises the other.

So put it up to him straight. Give him generous love and praise, but try to make him see that he doesn't need that false front. That if he has the goods the world'll discover it much more quickly if he saws wood and keeps still about it—and that what he needs is to believe in himself honestly and simply . . . and then do the best he can. But that he'll have to stop two-timing himself—and you—with his Big Talk . . . or you're through.

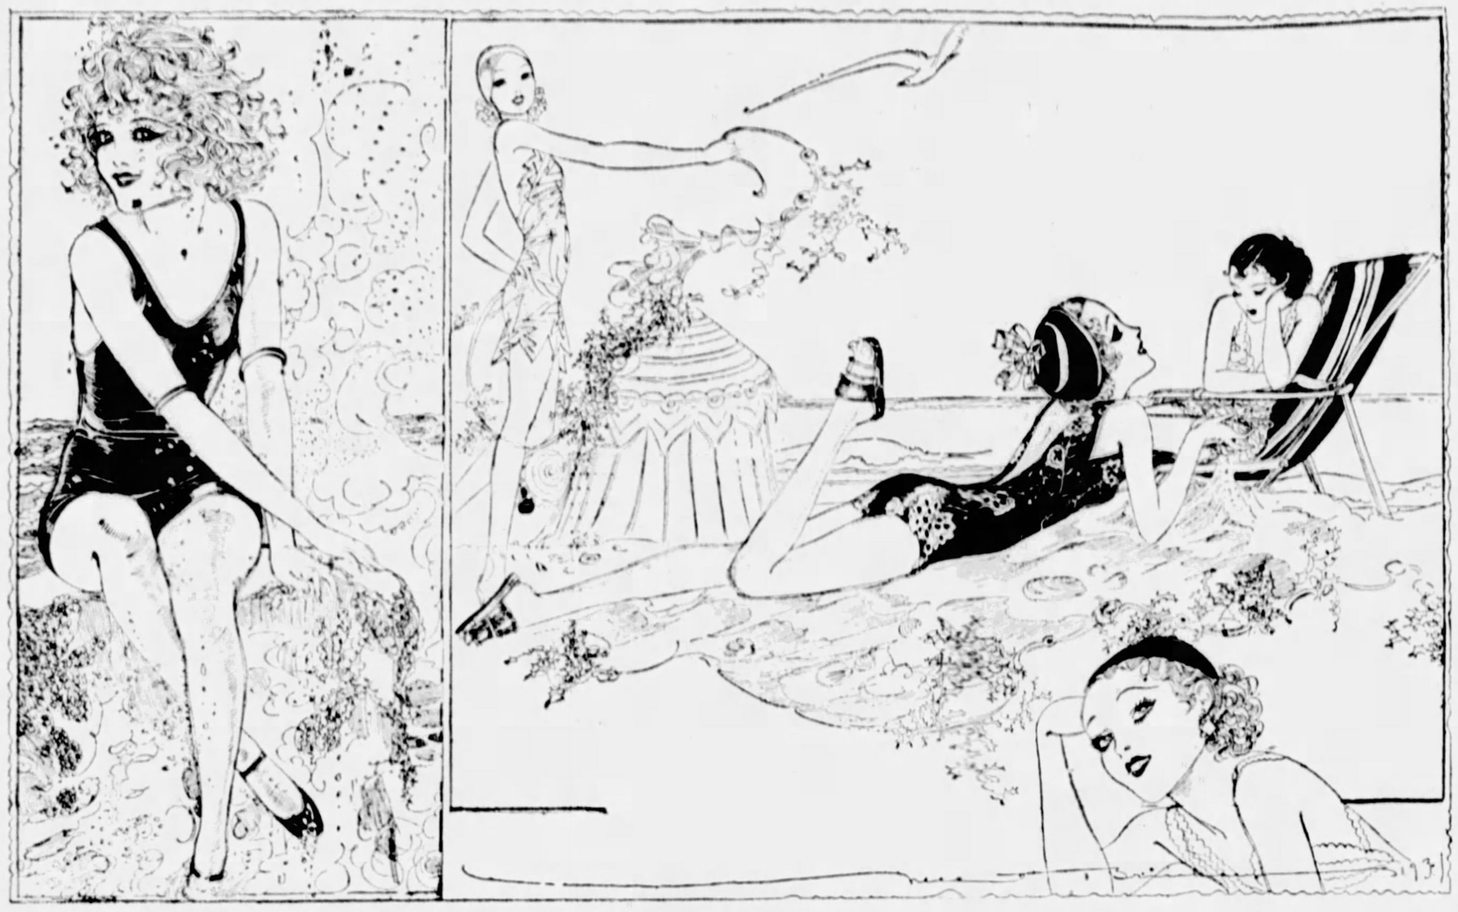
Useful and Ornamental

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



It won't be long now—until the bees and the cowslips and the fuzzy caterpillars are here for the summer-lover—the lover of summer! And the sea has calmed down for the gay little red and white and green boat of the boat boy and his missus. Nor long now until we see that pretty perennial—the mermaid with two feet—making the world interesting for the bystander.

The bathing girl is on her way. And, as of yore, you will see two distinct varieties—the Useful and the Ornamental.

It's a hard brown study for the Young Thing to decide which part she's going in for when she goes shopping for her new swimming rigging.

Will it, should it, ought it, to be the sunny, careless-of-her-makeup, hardy golden brown, Peter-Pannish girl, with the hard little muscles, legs like a boy, and the talent for perfect companionship on any adventure, the girl who needs no help, who wears the minutest of bathing suits—but of plain wool with not even a rumor of ornament? Is that the way the ONE MAN, if he should be met with some wonderful day, is to be won? Is that what the man-inhabitants like best? And being a true woman that's whom she wants to please, of course.

Or will she, should she, ought she, to go ornamental, decorative, picturesque, bijou, rare, a part of the summer landscape scheme, nautically helpless, doing her bit of color toward making the view satisfying, unwetted by the bad-naughty old ocean at all, sun goddess with not too much sun intruding, faddish, ultra-feminine? Is that the picture that the Prince, if he be met with THIS summer, will fall in love with? Is that the Fair that ALL man-dom really likes if he told the white truth?

There are lots of puzzled wives who have no intention of going in swimming who wonder over this conundrum, before the mirror and in the gown shops. To go Ornamental, or to stay Useful? That is the question.

And here's something that's been pretty well known for a million years or so—USEFUL is beautiful—and Ornamental is beautiful and useful, too! No man of character can do without the Useful—which means in love-language kind, loving, thoughtful, companionable—in the woman he meets around the world, but he likes "a little music with his dinner," they say, "flowers on the china," his "wine in a sparkling glass," a little frivolous decoration arm in arm with the wholesome and practical in his life.

Thinks you, and right you be, what he wants is two women in one! And that's nothing but the truth.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

In a Cafeteria, It's Time And Space

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When eating in a cafeteria, does one take the dishes off the tray or eat from the tray?

2. Is a widow called Mrs. Mary Baker or Mrs. James Baker?

B. T.

1. You do either for which you have the time and space. The etiquet of a cafeteria is based on the convenience—first of space, and second of time. These elements in this case make their own forms. Oftentimes, in cafeterias, there is absolutely no room to take the dishes from the tray.

2. A widow should be called Mrs. James Baker. In other words, her letters should be addressed as they were when her husband was alive. Her visiting cards, too, should be engraved with Mrs. James Baker. It is not good taste for the widow to use her first name, instead of her husband's first name, in formal details.

Merely a Thoughtful Matter Of Precaution

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one is given a glass of water on a plate, should one take the glass from the plate or take both; that is, take the plate holding the glass? A. B.

When one is given a glass of water on a plate, one should take the plate with the glass. The plate is for protection, and may catch a drop of water that otherwise might fall on one's very best party dress. In other words, there is a real point in taking the plate, too.

Let the Young Man Ask

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a young lady to ask a young man to write to her when they are not to see each other for some time, or should it be the other way around? My friend and I have been pondering over this question for days until, finally, we decided to consult you. E. M.

The gentleman is given this prerogative of asking the girl if he may have the privilege of writing to her. If she consents, he writes first to her.

Sentence Pronounced in "Stolen Revolver Case"

I smiled down at the troubled faces of my small son and his cousin, as they asked how they could tell what they knew about the missing revolver, "if a boy didn't do it, but showed somebody else where it was."

"That's easy," I said. "Just tell exactly what happened, only say 'a boy' or 'somebody' instead of the name of the person you mean."

"Oh, I see," they exclaimed together, and then they bent over the paper, and with many appeals to me for spelling, which inadvertently revealed the whole story to me, they finished their task. When we went back to Dicky's room, Hank and William were already there, Hank with red face and eyes fixed on the rug; William, looking at his brother with anger and disgust in his face. Dicky held out his hand for the statements, and I saw his lips twitch as he looked them over.

"Have you read them?" he asked, and as I nodded, he turned to Junior and Roderick.

"I'll talk to you later," he said. "You're not going to be switched because you've told the truth. You'll have some punishment, like going without a trip, or something like that, something you won't like, but it won't come until after the Christmas holidays. We won't spoil your fun before then."

"Gee!" Roderick exclaimed, but Junior flung himself upon his father. "Thank you, Dad," he said fervently, and then he and Roderick scampered from the room.

"The fact that you've owned up is the only thing that redeems this, Hank," Dicky said sternly to the younger of his nephews. "I'm not going to punish you for this, but you'd better watch your step pretty carefully from now on. I'm going to have an eye on you, remember that. Bill, the only mark I can see against you is that you've been careless, but I know you'll be more watchful next time. Now both of you go and gather up all the guns, that empty revolver, your own guns and the air rifles belonging to Junior and Roderick. I'm going to keep them in here, deal them out when I think you ought to have them, and they're to be brought back to me here. Heaven help the person that takes one out of here without my knowing it. Run along now."

They rose and went toward the door, but something in the look which William sent toward the younger brother made me nudge Dicky, and he halted his elder nephew with a call of "Bill, look here a second."

The boy came back promptly, but there was something truculent in his bearing, which did not abate at Dicky's words.

"Look here, Bill," his uncle said. "I'm perfectly aware that Hank ought to have a thrashing, but he's owned up to everything, so lay off him. Understand?"

He brought the last words out as if at the end of a whiplash, and William stiffened under them.

"Yes, sir. I understand; and I won't touch him," he said. "But, oh! What I'll do to him if he pulls a trick like this again. To think he'd do it when you've been so good to us."

"Never mind that, Bill. Just run along now, and forget all about this except—I depend on you to keep an eye on your brother and the two younger boys."

"I'll tend to 'em," William promised, drawing himself up as if invested with a marshal's baton. And then he was gone and Dicky drew me down to the couch beside him.

"Let's look over these things," he said. "They're quite a revelation."

They were short, all of them. Thanks to their frequent queries, there were no misspelled words in the labored compositions of Roderick and Junior.

Roderick's ran:

"We were talking about guns. Me and somebody else said we knew where there was one, because we saw it the morning we ran out into the hall in our pajamas. Then somebody else, a different one, said, 'Come on, kids show me,' and we showed him, and he—that's all I can tell."

Junior's was almost identical in phraseology and also failed to tell us of the actual taking of the gun. William's was short and terse.

Henry's was a full acknowledgment of guilt.

"The kids said they knew where there was a revolver," he began. "I asked 'em to show me where, and they took me to your room. I sent 'em out and hunted around, but I couldn't find a key to the wall place, where they said it was. But I did find a key to your desk in one of your pockets, and I unlocked it and found the gun. But I didn't let the kids handle it until I was sure it wasn't loaded."

I had Henry's confession down.

"He certainly has owned up to everything," I said.

"Yes," Dickey responded dryly. "I'd feel better about it if I hadn't caught Bill's mutter to Hank as they went out. 'If you had anything to do with this,' he said, 'you come clean or I'll break your neck!'"

"Oh, Dicky," I exclaimed ruefully.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

X-ray Is Beneficial in Treating Thymus Gland

One of the most puzzling and bewildering diseases of infancy is a condition known as "status lymphaticus."

Dr. Copeland

Scientific understanding of this disease is recent. It resembles other vague diseases in that it is due to a disturbance of a gland. The thymus gland is the particular seat of the disorder found in status lymphaticus. This gland is located just below the thyroid gland—"Adam's apple"—in the midline of the neck and extends to the chest.

The thymus is a temporary gland and normally attains its greatest size at the time of puberty. At this age of life it ceases to grow, shrinks and gradually disappears.

At birth the average weight of this gland is less than two ounces. From birth until about five years it weighs about half as much. In status lymphaticus the gland is often from five to 10 times larger than normal. In marked cases of this disease the gland may weigh as much as half a pound.

The condition is most frequently encountered between the ages of 6 to 12 months. It may be observed in children of any age.

The importance of recognizing this condition is great. Many of the sudden deaths in childhood, if carefully analyzed, may be attributed to this disease.

Occasionally a healthy child may suddenly be seized with convulsions and have difficulty in breathing. It is important that a child who has such attacks be given the best of care. If neglected, such a child may succumb at a very early age. This is particularly true if he should be subjected to an accident, a minor operation, or during the progress of some common childhood disease.

In many cases convulsions are absent and the child presents but one symptom—difficulty in breathing. The parents may believe the child has swallowed some foreign substance, or may be suffering from the croup.

For many years this disease bewildered the medical profession. With the advent of the X-ray machine, pictures may now be taken which show the actual enlargement of the gland.

Recently X-ray treatments have been given as a means of relief. This method of treatment has been extremely beneficial and has saved many infants.

Answers to Health Queries

A. M. B. Q.—Is it possible to rebuild the glandular system and how can this be done?

A.—This condition can be overcome in some instances by supplying the deficient gland. The treatment should be prescribed and taken under proper medical supervision and advice.

* * *

J. W. Q.—I am troubled with lumbago and have been advised by a friend to eliminate tomatoes and prunes; what would you advise? Heat usually gives relief, but I would like a definite cure.

A.—Prunes come under the heading of acid fruits. Most fruits, however, become alkaline in their final reaction in the body. Each system is different and should be studied and treated accordingly. Try to find the underlying cause of the trouble first of all.

STUBBORN SORE QUICKLY YIELDS TO RESINOL

"For a long time I was incapacitated by a sore which resulted from a sliver run under my thumb nail. Practically my whole hand became infected. For three months my thumb would not heal and nail would not grow on it. After trying several prescribed treatments to no avail, I purchased Resinol Ointment. Inside of two weeks the sore began to heal and after the third week the new nail was almost complete." (Signed)—

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

A woman writes me to complain that her husband has reached the "roaring forties" and wandered away from home. She says that she helped him make his money, but never had the pleasure of helping him spend it. Then five years ago they lost everything they had, including their home. Now he is amusing himself with younger women and is even neglecting to write or in any way communicate with his one and only son who is married. She doesn't let people know of what has transpired, but she feels that her outlook is a lonely one, and she wonders what I'd do if I were in her place.

It's a difficult question. The trouble with such cases is that when something can be done it isn't, and finally it gets past the time where one can yank into line one of these erring mates.

* * *

The time to prevent such a catastrophe is when the little things are done that lead on to big troubles. A wife and husband know—down deep in their hearts—what those little things were. They don't tell, but they KNOW. They fish around for things that make them look better and their partners look worse, and they always (and isn't that human?) put their best qualities out in the sunshine for the world to see, and hide the mean petty ones. I've heard them in divorce courts, a man or a woman, telling the court how good they were and what mean mates they married. The fact that they emphasize their good traits shows clearly that they are trying to forget the mean ones. Not one out of a hundred men and women, seeking divorce, tell the truth about what is separating them. That's because they know that they were born at fault.

Some little thing always starts a domestic tragedy.

The wife nags. Just a little at first, and then incessantly if she doesn't get her own way.

The husband fails ever to compliment a wife on anything she does or says, on anything she wears or cooks. He grunts for answer when she speaks to him. He forgets she stays at home all day and neglects to take her out at night even occasionally. He doesn't notice that to save him money she's wearing old clothes and then suggest to her that he wants to buy her a new dress.

* * *

A woman gets to roaring if her husband is late to dinner. He can't help it and he knows he can't, and he is innocent of anything except a vital interest in the vital business of making a living for his family. Finally he gets so irritated he deliberately stays out, to try, I suppose, to live up to her estimate of him. It's wrong, but the first mistake was hers.

It takes a lot of patience to remain happily married, and it takes good nature—plenty of it. They are worth cultivating because the net result is so great a happiness that even real want can't take the joy out of life.

Yesterday a lady stopped at the jewelry counter in a big department store. She made a remark to the elderly man behind the counter about a jeweler having shot and killed himself.

"It takes a lot of courage to stand life sometimes," he said. "I remember when I lost my business in which I had a quarter of a million dollars. My wife had gone to her mothers and I expected her back one day, when I had in my pocket just 50 cents. She arrived, and we had to eat tea and toast three times that day. But we were both very happy. No matter how bad business is if you have a wife who stands by—pleasantly, encouragingly — life can't get stale."

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pity the poor prodigal daughter who carries her fatted calves with her. She hates her bulky legs. She longs for those slender deer-like ankles sported with so much vanity by the slimpy sisters. Let her lie flat on her noble back, lift her feet in the air and pedal an imaginary bicycle. High kicking is a good stunt. It stirs muscles to action and the muscles kick off adipose tissue. Gymnasiums are equipped with electrical machines for leg reducing that jiggle dimensions down to normal. Massage will help, if continued long enough.

Anything that keeps the scalp warm interferes with the growth of the hair. Heat is depleting. Girls who wear their hats all day will find their topcrests wilty and depressed. At least once a week the hair should have a sun bath and the scalp be rubbed briskly for 10 or 15 minutes. Brushing cleans the hair, but is no special stimulant to the growth.

Time to get arms in condition for the summer season, since sleeveless frocks will be all the go. Anoint with a cream, sprinkle on almond meal, cover with Turkish towels that have been wrung out of hot water. Keep on for 10 minutes, bathe with tepid water and give a massage with talcum powder. The effects of this arm treatment are marvelous.

When tweezing away wild hairs about the eyebrows, begin with hot compresses. The hairs will be removed more quickly and with less discomfort. Buy tweezers with rounded points. They take a firmer hold.

Household Hints

Soiled photographs can be cleaned nicely by sponging lightly with absorbent cotton moistened with alcohol.

If when placing flowers in a vase you find some stiff stems that will not go in the position desired, massage them gently for a few minutes. This will make them remain as placed.

Before polishing the stove, wipe it off with a rag dampened with vinegar and then polish. It will keep its luster better and remain clean longer than if the blacking is put on the soiled stove.

GIANTS IN FIGHT IF HURLERS HOLD UP

WHEN THE NATIONAL League pennant race got under way it was generally agreed that in event of the New York Giants getting half-decent pitching they would have to be reckoned among the most dangerous of the flag contenders. Well, they're getting the pitching, and as a result of it they're living up to the early dope by standing out as one of the most impressive clubs in the circuit.

Bill Walker

Bill Walker's feat of shutting out the Braves yesterday was only a continuance of the high quality of hurling the McGrawites have been getting for some time. In the last three games only three runs have been made off the New York flingers. Clarence Mitchell beat the Robins, 3 to 2; Fred Fitzsimmons down the Braves, 2 to 1, and Walker gave the Hubites a second trimming, 5 to 0. The Braves had been playing high-jinks in the league, but in two games against the Giants they have scored only one run. Fitzsimmons, Mitchell and Walker so far have won eight games for the Giants without a defeat.

WITH THE RIGHT kind of reinforcement from the remainder of the staff, which at present includes Hubbell, Donohue, Heving, Berly, Schumacher, Chaplin, Lucas and Morrell, the New Yorkers will have as good a pennant chance as any other club in the hunt. They have a powerful team outside the box, and one that appears to have been helped rather than hurt by the radical Lindstrom-Vergez shift.

Up to date the McGrawmen have won more games than any other club in either of the big leagues, and only the Cardinals, who have played in fewer contests, are ahead of them in percentage. The present pitching may not last, but if it does, the Giants will not be beaten out easily by any rival.

INCIDENTALLY, THE GIANTS equaled the year's best record for consecutive victories by winning yesterday, their fourth straight. The Cubs, Cards and Braves in the National, and the Senators, Yankees, Tigers, Indians and White Sox in the American also have won four in a row.

The Cubs are the only club in either league that has not yet lost two games in succession. The Browns top both leagues in consecutive defeats, having dropped their last eight games. The Reds in the National have twice lost five in a row.

THE PIRATES HAVE won four of their last six games, but inasmuch as two of the victories were scored at the expense of the feeble Reds, the record can hardly be said to be as good as it sounds. Cincinnati looks like a hopeless tailender. It was only because Larry French was guilty of a mental slip in throwing to first base instead of the plate with the bases full in the third inning yesterday that the visitors were able to prolong the game two extra rounds. You can't sell players like Hughey Critz, Ethan Allen, Pete Donohue and Jake May and expect to have a winning club, so the Red owners are only paying the penalty of their own mistaken policy. The straits in which the club already finds itself may be judged from the fact that Pittsburgh was asked (and consented) to move up the game of July 8 and play a doubleheader in Cincinnati tomorrow. Baseball conditions must be pretty bad in a town where they start to manufacture bargain bills before the season is three weeks old.

Maxie Rosenbloom

MAXIE ROSENBLOOM, world light-heavyweight ring champion, is finding Battling Battalino's system helpful in the retention of his title. Following his defeat by Billy Jones here recently, he lost another decision in Denver Thursday night to George Manley, but on both occasions he kept his crown safe by forcing his opponents to come in above the class weight limit.

And even in his last fight before the Jones match, the decision given to Rosenbloom was considered so unfair that it almost caused a riot. Evidently the pace is telling on Rosenbloom at last, and if he obeys the New York commission's order to make a match with a worthy opponent in defense of his title within 15 days it will not be surprising if the bout produces a new champion.

YESTERDAY'S GAME AT Forbes Field may have brought a once promising major league career very close to the finishing point. Owen Carroll, Red pitcher, is getting his final chance to prove himself capable of holding down a major league job, and he certainly didn't help his cause by walking four men in the eleventh inning and forcing in the winning run.

When he was pitching for Holy Cross, Carroll looked like the best slab prospect in the country, but like many another college star his gilt peeled quickly under the acid test of the majors. He was dropped by the Tigers and Yankees before being taken on by the Reds.

RIGHT AT THE heels of Wes Ferrell's achievement in shutting out the Browns without a hit, two other major league no-hit heroes of earlier days, both Pittsburgh residents, were spectators at Forbes Field yesterday. One was Charles (Deacon) Phillippe, former Pirate star, who while pitching for the Louisville National League club on May 25, 1899, let the New York Giants down without a semblance of a safety and blanked them 7 to 0. The other was Ed Morris, who held the Pittsburgh club hitless and runless, winning, 5 to 0, while pitching for Columbus in the old American Association, then a major league, on May 29, 1884. Morris later pitched for Pittsburgh in the American Association, the National League and the Players' League.

THE PITT TRACK team didn't make much of a showing in its dual meet with Ohio State in Columbus last month, but at least it helped to bring out one of the stars of the recent Penn relays. Jack Keller, Ohio Sate sophomore, whose work was a feature of the big Philadelphia carnival, says it was the Panthers who showed him what he could do.

"It was the Pitt meet that made it possible for me to do what I did in the Penn relays," he said. "Never until our games with Pitt had I been able to do the 120-yard high hurdles under 15 seconds or the 220-yard low hurdles under 24 seconds."

AGAINST PITT KELLER hurdled the 120 in 14 5-10, and the 220 in 23 4-10. Going into the relays a week later he twice ran the 120 high hurdles in 14 7-10 and topped it off by running a sensational anchor in the shuttle hurdle relay. He insists it was the Pitt meet that made him.

Ruth Ruether

Keller, though only 19 years old, stands 6 feet 3½ inches, and is looked upon by many experts as the country's most promising timber topper. He is working his way through college by putting in his spare hours doing sports rewrite on a Columbus newspaper.

THE BUSINESS OF bringing girl players into professional baseball for cheap advertising purposes continues to grow. First Chattanooga introduced a female pitcher, next Joplin announced the signing of a young woman as catcher, and now the daughter of a former major league star has been added to the list in the Far West. The latest is Miss Ruth Ruether, daughter of Dutch Ruether, for many years a prominent big league southpaw flinger and a Pirate for a short time in his early days. Like her father, she is a pitcher, and is said to be booked for a trial soon with a minor league club.

RECORD ENTRY SEEKS SCHOOL HONORS

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent.

BEAVER FALLS, May 2.—High school stars from all sections of Pennsylvania, from West Virginia and Eastern Ohio stormed the track and field at Reeves Stadium here today over 1,000 strong, a record entry, for participation in the third annual Geneva College interscholastic relays.

Sixty-one schools, split into three classes, and with all three of 1930's championship squads on hand, sent crack arrays of runners and jumpers, weight men, leapers and hurdlers into competition this morning, shooting both at existing meet and state records and at coveted carnival championships.

MEET RATES HIGH

The Geneva meet is one of the five major interscholastic track and field events of the state, others being the Pitt interscholastics, the annual W. P. I. A. L. championships, the P. I. A. A. finale and the Penn State invitation affair.

Trial heats in all running events and preliminaries in the field competition made up the program for this morning, with semi-finals and finals and the relay program, the feature of the carnival, slated to get under way at 1:30 this afternoon.

East Palestine, in Class A; Ellwood City, in Class B and Lisbon, O., in Class C, have formidable squads on hand with which they hope to retain the titles won a year ago. Outstanding among the individual champs seeking to successfully defend laurels is O'Dile Pryor, of Ford City, crack sprinter, who won the century here last year in 10 seconds flat, equaling the meet record.

In the field, Muscovich, of Aliquippa, is a favorite to crack the

BELIEVE IT OR NOT (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE RUSSIAN FACTORY HANDS WHO SLAPPED EACH OTHER'S FACES FOR 36 HOURS—Michalko Goniusz and Wasyl Bezborodny, two factory hands, of Kiev, Russia, slapped each other's face for 36 hours. Mutual face-slapping is a good-natured sport greatly favored by the Ukrainian peasants. It is indulged in during carnivals and wherever the "musik" congregates. The effect on the audience is exhilarating rather than brutalizing, and they encourage their champions by calls and cheers. TEMISKAMING, QUEBEC—The town of Temiskaming, which now has a total population of about 3,000, was planned and developed by the International Paper Company, with the primary aim of providing comfortable homes and pleasant surroundings for those employed at the Kipawa mills. All taxes are borne by the company, since no one can own his own house, and only the employes are allowed to live in company houses. THE CHECKER PROBLEM—A game of checkers can be played to a finish, without either player losing a man, each player making 13 legitimate moves, and neither player having an opportunity to jump the opponent's men. A numbered diagram and list of moves for players will be sent upon request if accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TOMORROW—BABE RUTH'S NEMESIS.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Our Pirates have the opportunity to bring their victories up to the same level as their defeats as they take on the Reds this afternoon in the third game of a series that will be continued tomorrow in Cincinnati. The Freebooters made it two in a row over the forlorn Reds yesterday as they won 5 to 4, in 11 frames, yet their seventh success of the season finds them still below the .500 mark, a point they can reach by adding another triumph today.

Manager Ens announced this morning he would send Claude Willoughby to the mound in the third clash with the Howleymen. The former Phil has started only one contest since the season began, he losing a fight with the Cubs in Chicago in the opening series. Ens, however, has seen enough of Willoughby to indicate the Kansan is ready to go the route.

TWIN BILL TOMORROW

The two clubs will leave for Cincinnati tonight. On the morrow they will stage a doubleheader at Redland Field. The dual affair was not in the books, but the Cincinnati officials asked the Pirate owners to move up a game scheduled for July 8 at Cincinnati and the request was granted.

Monday and Tuesday are open dates on the Pittsburgh championship card, but the Bucsos will be engaged in Mid-Atlantic League

YANKS VICTIMS AS EARNSHAW REGAINS FORM

Associated Press.

It wasn't so many months ago that George Earnshaw was buzzing them past the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series. For some reason or another, however, the famed right arm that came to the rescue of Connie Mack's Athletics last fall has not been performing so perfectly this spring for George—or at least it hadn't until yesterday.

Twice Connie Mack had given a right-handed ace the starting assignment and twice Earnshaw failed. On two other occasions he went in as a relief hurler but was not credited with a victory or charged with a defeat. But yesterday Earnshaw was the Earnshaw of 1930, who won 22 games for the world champions, as he turned the New York Yankees back with three singles and the Athletics won 4 to 0.

YANKS HELPLESS

One of the singles came in the second while the other two were tied together in the ninth in a futile rally after Mule Haas and Mickey Cochrane had put the champions out in front with home runs.

Jumping into battle after a five-day layoff due to rain and cold weather, the lowly Boston Red Sox pounded three Washington pitchers all over the lot to defeat the Senators, 10 to 4. Jack Russell held Walter Johnson's Nationals to 10 scattered hits.

Eric Frasier had his right arm and batting eye working as he pitched and batted the White Sox to an 8-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The Texas rookie limited the Browns to nine well-scattered hits and in addition doubled with bases loaded in the fifth—a seven-run inning for the Sox.

Harlie Sullivan stepped out of his usual role as a relief hurler, pitching and finishing a game as the Detroit Tigers turned the Cleveland Indians back, 4 to 2. Willie Gehringer, although not batting second because of a sore arm, got into his 597th consecutive game when he batted for McManus in the eighth.

CARDS TAKE LEAD

The battle for first place in the National League was settled, at least temporarily, when the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 2. The victory gave the Cards undisputed possession of the top of the percentage column. Gabby Hartnett made a valiant effort to put the Cubs in first place with a home run in the second inning, but his teammates failed to keep pace while the Cards took advantage of their nine hits off Bob Smith and Bud Teachout.

To most teams, a two-game winning streak is not much but to the Brooklyn Dodgers it means that they probably have hit their stride after a dismal start. Heavy hitting behind the steady pitching of Joe Shaute gave the Dodgers their second in a row over the Phillies. The score was 8 to 4.

Hughie Critz, Giants second baseman, swung a powerful bat in New York's 5-to-0 victory over the Boston Braves. He clubbed out four singles and a home run for a perfect day at bat while Bill Walker was keeping the Braves' seven hits well scattered.

A base on balls proved to be the downfall of the Cincinnati Reds as they lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates 5 to 4 in 11 innings. With the bases loaded Carroll lost control, passed Sankey and Paul Waner scored.

The long-awaited beginning of varsity athletic relations involving Duquesne University with the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech became a reality yesterday when the Dukes met Tech in tennis on the Bluff courts. SLOAN ENTERS NO-HIT RANKS

The third no-hit game of the scholastic baseball campaign was turned in yesterday in a W. P. I. A. L. tussle. Gail Sloan, star hurler of Wilkinsburg High, turned back Edgewood in a Section II game, 9 to 0. Sloan fanned 11 opposing batters.

Martin, of Peabody in the City League, has hurled two no-hit games so far, one of them being a shutout.

BEAVER VICTOR

Beaver, Mt. Lebanon and Carnegie scored triumps in W. P. I. A. L. tests yesterday. Beaver, making its debut as a league title contender, blanked Monaca, 8-0. Lawry Crawford, the crack left-hander, gave up but only four hits. Cobner, Beaver shortstop, clouted a home run.

Mt. Lebanon won over Dormont in a slugfest, 14 to 12, and Carnegie turned in a 6 to 4 win over Crafton.

In non-league tussles, McKeesport upset the dope by defeating Westinghouse, a City League title contender, 8 to 6. The defeat was the second of the week and reason for the Brushton entry. Schenley beat Westinghouse 5 to 1 Wednesday.

ALLDERDICE TROUNCED

Langley served McKees Rocks somewhat of a surprise by winning out by an 8 to 6 score. Taylor Allderdice was no match for Turtle Creek, the Creekers winning 15 to 4. Rankin pounded out a 12-7 win over the Duke Preps.

In a Junior League game Latimer defeated Liberty, 9 to 6. The senior City League had an off day.

GRAYS BATTLE CHARLEROI

By TOM BIRKS

The ever-busy Homestead Grays continue their tussling with Middle Atlantic League teams today. Yesterday, the Grays nosed out the Jeannette Jays at Jeannette 8 to 7, and this afternoon will meet the Charleroi Governors at Charleroi.

The Book Shoe nine, of the City League, tackles the strong Crafton Community outfit at Crafton today in a sandlot feature. The Crawfords take on the Verona Community tossers at Verona and the North Side Elks and North Side Bucks meet. Swissvale engages the Library Shop team at Library.

Jones, hurling for Fintex against the North Side Bucks last evening, set the North Siders down with only two safe hits, Fintex winning, 5 to 1. Barnhart, Fintex first sacker, had two safe hits.

In other sandlot tussles last evening, St. Joachims defeated Pittsburgh Coal, 6 to 4; Swissvale hammered the McKeesport Scholastics, 6 to 3, and Williams and the Oliver Cubs tied, 2-2.

GARCIA BEATEN

SALISBURY, Md., May 2 (AP.)—Bob Garcia, of Baltimore, attempting a comeback after more than a year of rest, was outfought by Bennie Taub, of Philadelphia, at the arena here last night in a six-round bout. Though unable to get his right in motion with effectiveness, Garcia showed ability to take much punishment. Garcia weighed 125, Taub 129.

DISTRICT LINKS BUSY TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Golf clubs throughout the district are holding sweepstakes and club tournaments today, and the links are expected to be given more play than at any time so far this season.

Although three matches are slated in the Interscholastic Golf Conference today, two of them may not be played due to the fact that the schools were not given sufficient time to make proper preparation and arrangements for links.

Shady Side Academy will travel to Kiski Prep today for its Section 1 match. That contest is assured. But the scheduled contests between McKeesport and Bellevue, on the Highland links, and that between Oliver and Carrick, probably at South Hills, may be postponed until next week.

Carrick High was admitted to the league only yesterday, and will join McKeesport, Bellevue and Oliver in that group. Its schedule:

May 2, Oliver at Carrick; May 15, McKeesport at Carrick; May 18, Carrick at Oliver; May 22, Bellevue at Carrick.

TECH NETTERS TRIM DUKES; PITT WINS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University resumed athletic relations yesterday after a 12-year lapse, and the Tartans celebrated the occasion by invading the Bluff precinct and battling away with 7-1 victory in a racquet affair that was far more closely contested than the mere score might lead one to believe. Coach Hoover's Plaid proteges displayed a consistently strong attack which proved capable of carrying the Kilties through in most of the numerous pinches that arose.

Capt. Andy Smeaton, undefeated in his past 14 starts, offered the lone Duke bright spot of the afternoon. The rangy Edgewood lad registered decisive 6-0, 6-2 success over Stewart Dueger, hard-hitting, but erratic Skibo.

SMEATON LONE VICTOR

But that isolated number one singles verdict let the Hillmen out for the day. Capt. Morris, visiting second man, fought up from hostile set point in the initial canto to trim Casey, Red and Blue driver, 8-6, 6-4. McCloskey, Berghane, and Gesling, cavorting at numbers three, four, and five, respectively for the Hoover crew, were pushed to the extra-set limit by Campbell, Bullion, and Boland of the Bluffites in the order named and in each case the Schenley Park performer packed the wallop to ease over the vital point.

Dueger and Berghane, combining the speed of the former with the accuracy of the latter, landed the first dual engagement in the Scotch kitbag at the expense of the newly formed Bluff pair, Smeaton and Boland, 6-1, 12-10.

Gesling and Groves, Tartan youngsters, edged out the similarly green Hill third duo, O'Neill and Soisson, after the latter outfit had made gallant stand, 6-4, 9-7.

Aside from Smeaton, the Bluffmen are sadly deficient in barrier play and must bolster this department of their pastiming if they are to break into the win column today, when Bob Thorn ships his Grove City squad to the Hill.

All in all it was a tough day for the Dukes, as the Carnegie plebes walloped the Duke freshmen, 6 to 1. The summaries:

VARSITY

Singles

Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Dueger, Carnegie, 6-0, 6-2; Morris, Carnegie, defeated Casey, Duquesne, 8-6, 6-4; McCloskey, Carnegie, defeated Campbell, Duquesne, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3; Berghane, Carnegie, defeated Bullion, Duquesne, 6-2, 6-4; Gesling, Carnegie, defeated Boland, Duquesne, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2; Groves, Carnegie, defeated O'Neill, Duquesne, 6-4, 7-5.

Sport Vignettes

If you want a treat you MUST hear Bill Farren, the radio sports announcer, recite the "Shooting of Dan McGrew," as he did at a banquet the other night . . . . Or see him prove himself a hero by remaining in his seat at the matside and letting a wrestler throw himself out of the ring onto his lap instead of retreating along with the scribes to leave the grappler to his own fate . . . . Fritzie Zivic, a bit downcast by his elimination in the first round of the national senior championships in New York this week, is thinking of quitting the ring sport, but likely will change his mind as soon as he forgets the incident . . . . Fritzie's brother, Jack, the former welterweight bearcat, and Luke Carney, escaped injuries when they damaged Jack's car en route to the New York bouts . . . . Al Pierotti, the former Boston Braves pitcher, now is a heavyweight rassler . . . . Back in 1920, Pierotti knocked the New York Giants out of the National League pennant when he defeated them in the final game after they had won the first four of a five-game series, thus enabling the Brooklyn Robins to edge into the world series.

Scotty Monteith, remembered as the manager of Johnny Dundee in the latter's heyday, and later as the matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, New York, is having considerable success as the matchmaker for the Olympia Arena of Detroit. . . . One of his current specialties is a series of heavyweight shows, which he calls beef trust affairs. . . . He offers 17 short bouts at 50 cents and $1 and $1.50.

It seems the world record for three games in duckpins is neither 700, as claimed for Ed Renkey in a recent tournament here, nor 702, rolled by R. Hamel, of Butler, who disputed Renkey's claim. . . . Comes word that one Steve Selai, of Munhall, aged 23, a well-known roller in these parts, turned in a count of 715 on January 7, last, rolling games of 258, 224 and 233. . . . Selai's score is attested by A. B. Parker, on whose alleys in Munhall it was compiled. . . . Selai rolls for the Ackerman team in the Hill Top League. . . . Among the drivers in the 109-mile automobile race at the Langhorne (Pa.) track this afternoon will be Freddie Winnai, of Philadelphia, who narrowly escaped death when his car caught fire at Altoona last June. . . . He lay in a hospital hovering between life and death for weeks, and it was freely predicted he would not race again, but the lure of the roaring highway has proved too strong for him to resist.

The mystery of how it was possible for him to play billiards on a table tilted at an angle of 30 degrees was explained by Charles C. Peterson, veteran billiard showman, during his stay here a few days ago. . . . The St. Louis cueist recently loaded a table into a plane, and, after clicking off 100 points in less than 30 seconds while flying along at an even keel, had the aviator tilt the plane while he concluded his performance. . . . It long has been known that water will not fall from an inverted bucket when the container is swung with sufficient rapidity . . . The same theory applies to Peterson's billiard performance, for the aviator circled his plane at such a high rate of speed that the balls on the table tilted at a 30-degree angle moved only when Peterson moved them . . . . Peterson is credited with originating the oval table on which he entertained the local fans, but he says an oval table was the only kind known to billiardists early in the eighteenth century . . . He says that because oval tables do not reward skill as fully as the rectangular tables now in vogue, there is no possibility of a return of oval table popularity.—HARRY KECK.

territory on those two days. The big leaguers will show their stuff to Huntington, W. Va., fans Monday and the following day they will take on the Charlestown, W. Va., team at that place. The Ensmen will be back in the Oakland Orchard Wednesday to start a four-game series with the classy Cardinals.

The Rhinelanders put up a stubborn fight to thwart the Pirates yesterday, but they bowed in defeat in the eleventh, the winning run going over with dullthud effect. The bases were filled with Pirates and two were out when Owen Carroll threw four successive balls to Shortstop Ben Sankey who replaced Tommy Thevenow late in the battle.

PASSES COSTLY

P. Waner started the inning by drawing a pass. Capt. Traynor promptly sacrificed and Comorosky was given an intentional pass. Suhr forced Commy at the middle bag as Brother Paul romped to third. Suhr then went to second unmolested and Eddie Phillips walked to fill the sacks. Sankey did not offer at a ball as Carroll failed to get the rocket over. P. Waner was forced over as the battle ended.

Larry French was moving along like a star when the eighth inning started, the Buccos having a one-run lead. Sigafoos singled and Roush doubled to open the inning and the picture thus was suddenly changed. Larry took Big Nick Cullop out of the picture on a pop fly, but Little Tony Cuccinello whacked a double to left that scored two runs and put the Rhinelanders out in front.

A fine hit by Lloyd Waner with two out in the eighth scored Woodie Jensen with the tieing tally.

VICTORY FOR SPENCER

Glenn Spencer went to the mound for the Pirates in the ninth and stayed right down to the finish, the young righthander receiving credit for his second victory of the season. Carroll went to the mound in the ninth and pitched two runless rounds before he lost control.

T. C. TRACKERS WIN

The Turtle Creek Union High School track team defeated Duquesne High in a dual meet at Duquesne yesterday afternoon, 77 to 36. Union's mile relay team covered the distance in 3:45.

Between Rounds

The first of the professional boxing shows to be held in Weirton, W. Va., under the new state law is scheduled for tonight, with Joey Ross, of New York, and Ross Fields, Weirton's southpaw flyweight, in the 10-round main bout. It is an open-air show and will be held at the high school athletic field.

Both Eddie Shea and Steve Smith will arrive in town tomorrow for their 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night.

The Meyers Bowl has given up hope of landing Tony Herrera for its opening show, two weeks from next Monday night. Ray Alvis, manager of Tony, finally having cast his lot with the Hickey Park arena, where Herrera is scheduled to furnish half of the windup action in the opening show, May 21.

Jimmy Moinette, French welterweight, of Alliance, O., now is under the management of James (Red) Mason. He is only 18 years old, but already has boxed Larry Madge, Freddie Edwards, Marty McHale, Young Rudy and Ted Yarosz, among others.

FRANK SHIELDS AND ALLISON TRIUMPH

MEXICO CITY, May 2.—(AP.)—With the President of Mexico, the American Ambassador and 3,000 other persons looking on, the United States' Davis Cup youngsters yesterday won their first two matches from Mexico in the first-round play in the North American zone.

Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., veteran Davis Cup doubles player and singles finalist at Wimbledon last year, defeated Alfonso Unda, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, in the first match and young Frank Shields, of New York, defeated Mexico's ace, Ricardo Tapia, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

TEAMS REST TODAY

Today the two squads will rest, resuming play tomorrow with Shields and young Sidney B. Wood, Jr., University of Arizona student, meeting Tapia and a player yet to be named in a doubles match. The final two singles matches will be played Tuesday.

Shields and Tapia, the American youngster towering almost a foot over his small, fragile-appearing adversary, provided most of the drama yesterday.

The skillful little Mexican, playing from deep backcourt, kept the American youngster on the run and piled up a lead of 3 to 1 in each of the first two sets. Each time, when danger threatened, Shields went to the net to smash out a victory. The match was bitterly contested and long drawn out.

ALLISON TOO STRONG

The match between Allison and Unda was rather dull, with the young Mexican no match for his experienced, skillful opponent from across the border.

President Ortiz Rubio and Ambassador Joshua Reuben Clark, Jr., were prominent among the crowd viewing the match.

TARTANS MEET CINCINNATI

Carnegie Tech's varsity track and field squad faces its third dual engagement in as many weeks in the Tartan Bowl today, the University of Cincinnati's squad being here for a clash with the Plaid.

P. A. A. and Western Reserve have been taken into camp by the Skibos to date. While not of exceptional strength, the Carnegie team is well balanced and boasts some star performers in Coulter, hurdler and quartermiler; George Nease, sprinter; Capt. Ray Barger, vaulter; Ramsey and Price, distance cloggers and Karcis, Armentrout and Seyboth, weight men.

School marks have been toppled in both the preceding Tech meets and it is expected that others may be shaken today.

The Tech Plebes left this morning for Clarion, where this afternoon they oppose the Clarion State Teachers in a dual engagement.

STARS AT RELAYS

Relay teams and individual stars from Pitt, West Virginia, Bethany, Geneva and Westminster are representing the Tri-State district in the annual Ohio State relays at Columbus today.

Capt. Utterback, of Pitt, broad jump star; Hill, Mountaineer weight star, and Brownlee, Westminster hurdler, are point scoring possibilities in their favorite events.

Geneva meets Grove City at Grove City and Wash-Jeff takes on Allegheny at Washington in dual meets today.

WHEELING MEET TODAY

WHEELING, W. Va., May 2.—Three hundred and fifty-six school boy athletes from the tri-state district started an all-day grind today for honors in the fourth annual invitation track meet here.

The Brooklyns made a nice race of it to grab the cellar, but they quit when they saw the Reds burrowing in like gophers. I don't know what their trouble is unless the Reds are waiting for orders from Moscow to start playing ball, or maybe they were saving them elves in April so they could bust loose on May Day. The weather is still so cold in Boston we are using hot water bottles for bases and wearing our Mackinaws for vests.

CAPTURE OF HINDENBURG LINE LAUDED

FOCH DETAILS GREAT VICTORY BY ALLIES

British, Belgians Sweep Over Marshes to Rout Foe From Strongest Defenses

In yesterday's installment Marshal Foch described the preparations that were made for the Meuse-Argonne offensive in which the American troops played an outstanding role. He outlined the principle of his plan of attack and told of the opening phases of the battle in that region. In today's installment he tells of the successful operations of the Allied forces early in October, 1918, that broke the Hindenburg line.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH
Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

CHAPTER XXXV.

On September 27, 1918, the British 1st and 3rd Armies (Gens. Horne and Byng) moved in the direction of Cambrai and attacked the German positions between the Sensee and Villers-Guislain at dawn. They crossed the Canal du Nord and with magnificent dash captured the celebrated points of support of Marquion, Bois-Bourlon and Flesquieres, piercing the enemy's lines to a depth of four miles and taking over 8,000 prisoners and 100 cannon.

On the 28th they followed up their advance, seized Fontaine-Notre Dame and Marcoing, crossed the Scheldt north of the last-named place and the next day, September 29, they reached the very gates of Cambrai. The whole of the Hindenburg line that lay in their sector of attack was in their hands.

The British 4th army (Gen. Rawlinson) responded to this brilliant victory by an equally successful advance farther south. On September 29, in this turn, it attacked the Hindenburg position between Vendhuille and Holnon, carried its first lines, and, advancing resolutely upon Bohain, crossed the Saint-Quentin canal between Ballicourt and Lahaucourt.

Marshal Foch

On its right, the French 1st army (Gen. Debeney) attacked south of Saint-Quentin, and after heavy fighting, captured the point of support of Cerizy.

The Franco-British offensive was furiously pursued during the next few days. On October 3, the British armies, following the Scheldt above Masnieres, reached the outskirts of Le Catelet and the line of heights east of the Saint-Quentin canal.

At the same time the French 1st army, having extended its front of attack north of Saint-Quentin, crossed the canal near Le Tronquoy, surrounded the town from the north and from the south, and reoccupied it.

There was nothing left to capture in this region but the last strongholds of the Hindenburg Line. On October 5th, these were assaulted. The British 4th Army, crossing the Scheldt between Crececoeur and Le Catelet, captured the plateau of Beaurevoir-Montbrehain, and thereby completed for its sector of attack the conquest of the renowned German position.

Success Exploited

In contrast to this success, the French 1st Army, closely held to its mission of "supporting at all costs the right of the British Army," encountering the strongest sort of resistance east and northeast of Saint-Quentin. Renewing its attacks on the following days, it captured Lesdin (October 6th) and advanced upon Fontaine-Uterte.

On the 8th, it captured the latter place and turned the German defences northeast of Saint-Quentin. Seconded by the progress of the British 4th Army, it was soon to reap the fruits of its tenacity.

The day the entire Hindenburg Line fell into the hands of his armies, Marshal Haig had given instructions for exploiting the success without the least delay; rapid movement must prevent the enemy from having time to re-establish himself solidly on his second line, the Hunding Stellung, which was nearer to Hindenburg Line south of Cambrai than anywhere else.

The Marshal, therefore, ordered his 3rd and 4th Armies, still covered on the right by the French 1st Army, to make a general attack on October 8 in the vicinity south of Cambrai. This object having been achieved, the British 1st Army was to try to force the passage of the Scheldt north of the latter town in the vicinity of Ramillies.

In execution of these orders, the assault of the British 3rd and 4th Armies was made on October 8 between Cambrai and Sequehart. It met with complete success, capturing with one blow the Hunding Stellung along the whole front prescribed.

The army of Gen. Debeney, having seized (as already noted) the high plateau of Fontaine-Uterte, extended and effectively supported the British advance. On October 9 the British 1st Army, in its turn, forced the passages of the Scheldt at Ramillies and further south.

This victory, succeeding those of the preceding days, was a serious disaster to the Germans, obliging them to effect a wide movement of retreat between the Sensee and the Oise.

Feared Bad Weather

On October 12 the Allied advance guards, pressing the enemy hard, reached the left bank of the Selle between Haspres and Le Cateau, the western edge of the forest of Andigny and the northern bank of the Oise below Bernot.

Their left now came in contact with a third position, which the enemy had erected along the general line of Bouchain-La Capelle-Le Cateau-Hirson-Mezieres, while their right faced that part of the Hunding Stellung which runs along the western bank of the Oise between Mont d'Origny and the mouth of the Serre.

The Flanders Group of Armies (G. A. F.) was ordered formed, as we have seen, on September 11, and the work was pursued with the greatest rapidity.

Haste was essential, for here in the low lands of Flanders, wholly devastated by the war, if the bad season should overtake us while we were still engaged in mere preparations, it would be well nigh impossible to withdraw the Belgian Army from the ground it occupied or had consolidated on the left bank of the Yser and throw it across to the right bank.

For both borders of the river were nothing but quagmires and four years of battle and bombardment had transformed the adjacent land into an almost continuous marsh, which bad weather would make absolutely impassable.

After insuring a suitable direction for the Flanders Group of Armies (H. M. the King of the Belgians, assigned by Gen. Degoutte and his staff), it became necessary to provide it with the troops required to accomplish the mission which fell to it as part of the general Allied offensive.

Offensive Successful

Besides the Belgian Army these forces comprised the British Second Army (Gen. Plumer), the French Second Cavalry Corps and two French Army Corps (Seventh and Thirty-fourth).

To furnish them with the necessary material for combat, transport and communication appeals were made to the British Army, the French Army and even to the military governor of Paris. The British navy promised the cooperation by day and by night of an air force.

I insisted that all the means thus placed at the disposal of the King of Belgium should be used in such a way as to obtain results of the widest possible scope from the start. With this in view, I asked Marshal Haig to take the necessary steps with Gen. Plumer. To avoid any mistaken interpretation, I requested him to specify that the entire British 2nd Army was placed at the disposal of its commander from the very first day. Its attacks to the northeast of the Comines Canal aimed at reaching Zandworde and the heights of Kruisecke as soon as possible.

It was under these conditions that, after an artillery attack lasting three hours, the offensive of the Flanders group of armies was launched on September 28 at 5:30 p. m. in the interval comprised between Dixmude and the Lys. It obtained immediately a great success, capturing the entire German first line and greatly weakening the second.

Next morning I was in Flanders. In turn, I saw Gen. Plumer at Cassel, King Albert at La Panne, Lieut. Gen. Gillain at Houthem. I urged them to push forward rapidly toward Roulers and Thourout. But ardor was by no means lacking.

On the 29th Dixmude was reoccupied, and the whole Passchendaele Ridge as well as the strong position of Messines-Wytschaete fell into the hands of the Allies. In two days nearly 10,000 prisoners and 200 guns were taken.

Advance Hampered

The advance was continued the 30th, but, hampered by bad weather, progress became slower. The British 2nd Army, nevertheless, drew nearer to Menin and reached the left bank of the Lys from Warneton to Wervicq.

On October 1 and 2, after some unimportant progress had been made, it was decided to call a halt, in order to prepare a new and powerful attack after re-establishing communications with the rear.

For the difficulties of the terrain had become only too apparent. While the troops had rapidly pushed across this country—which presented nothing but a succession of more or less continuous shell holes filled with water—and had come to solid soil, farther to the rear, communications on the right bank of the Yser had been cut in many places and it became apparent that it would be impossible to make repairs with earth taken from neighboring ground, since it was still little more than a marsh.

To supply the troops in battle, in the matter of both food and ammunition, was becoming impossible in certain zones. For a time we were reduced to having thousands of rations transported by air. To make it possible for the convoys to move, it was necessary first of all to thoroughly repair our lines of communication; this required the construction at certain places of miles of road borne on trestles.

Notwithstanding these difficulties, the results of our incontestable success in Flanders were already becoming noticeable. Menaced by the advance of the Flanders group of armies north of the Lys and by the simultaneous advance of the English armies south of the Sensee, the Germans again fell back before the British 5th Army (Gen. Birdwood) operating to the right of the British 2nd Army, and also in liaison with the 1st.

On October 2nd, La Bassee and Lens were reoccupied; on the 3rd Armentieres; on the 4th, the advance guards of Gen. Birdwood reached the railway between Armentieres and Lens and the Haute-Deule Canal, where they established contact with the advance guards of Gen. Horne, whose left wing likewise was following up the retreating enemy.

Enemy Defense Weak

Since the 18th of July, we had dealt the Germans blow after blow, and now he was being shaken in Flanders as well as along the rest of the front. This process had prevented him from re-establishing his resistance at any point, and the favorable situation resulting for our armies could be maintained or even accentuated, provided we exploited it immediately and left the enemy no time for recuperation.

This seemed the more certain since, according to all information received, the Germans had no line of defense in Belgium, back of Douai, to which they might withdraw. Therefore, in letters dated October 6 and 9, I urged the Flanders group of armies to hurry the resumption of its attacks as much as possible by pushing the repair of its line of communication.

"The defeat which the enemy has just suffered on the English front," said the last of these letters, "as well as the development of our attacks on the Franco-American front, creates at present an exceptionally advantageous situation for the continuation of the offensive in Belgium.

"This state of affairs makes it particularly desirable for you to hasten your attack and consequently suggests as of the greatest interest that you push forward your preparations to the utmost."

Nevertheless, despite the good will of everybody, the Flanders group of armies could not be got ready for another attack until October 14. But on that date, with its troops operating on territory that had not been devastated by the war and with communications now assured across an area devastated by four years of conflict, it was able to resume the battle.

If material resources of sufficient power were forthcoming, it would now be in a position to continue its attacks, in no matter what season, until the enemy's resistance was entirely overcome.

In tomorrow's installment Marshal Foch will tell of the plans for the great offensive beginning in October, 1918.

Real Estate

The Koppers Building, Inc., reports the leasing of a large storeroom with an entrance at 446 Seventh avenue and the mezzanine floor of the Koppers Building to Beaux Arts, Inc. James P. Donovan was the broker.

Other new tenants of the Koppers Building include A. B. Dick Company, Cambridge Glass Company, Pennsylvania-Conley Tank Car Company, Grand Rapids Store Equipment Company and the Revere Copper and Brass, Inc.

DOWNTOWN LEASE

A long term lease has been secured by J. A. H. Junker, Inc., wholesale leather merchants, on the five-story building at 329 Water street from Fred W. and Caleb McCune, according to the United States Realty Company, downtown brokers.

George H. Alexander & Co., realtors formerly located at 242 Diamond street, have moved their offices to 433 Wood street.

Seven building lots in Seminole Hills, Mt. Lebanon, have been purchased by Albert Q. Starr from Christian I. Shannon through the offices of Eugene S. Reilly & Co.

The same brokers, represented by W. J. Foley, have sold for Michael L. and Anna C. Phillips to R. R. and Bertha C. Root the two-and-a-half-story brick home and garage at 1430 North Euclid avenue. A house of brick construction and two-car garage, 921 Farragut street, has been conveyed by Charles Mayer to Paul L. Coyle, according to Eugene S. Reilly & Co.

START DEVELOPMENT

Herman Kamin, builder, has started the development of 40 acres of ground at Winterburn avenue and Bigelow boulevard by beginning construction on 12 moderate priced homes. Two of these, according to the builder, have already found buyers.

When the 12 have been completed, Kamin will immediately begin working on more homes until he has completed 60. There is at present 1,000 feet of paved street in the development and more will be added as the demand grows.

Applications for building permits follow:

Second Ward—Century Land Company, alterations, 130-34 Sandusky street, $1,000.

Twelfth Ward—Board of Public Education foundation, 1101 Murtland avenue, $25,000.

Fourteenth Ward—F. Schaefer, store addition, 1045 Devon road, $3,000.

George S. Watson

Pittsburgh and Carnegie postoffice employes this afternoon will attend funeral services for George S. Watson, 47, at the home of his parents, 528 East Main street, Carnegie. Mr. Watson, son of Councilman George W. Watson, of Carnegie, died in Passavant Hospital Thursday. He was foreman of the parcel post division in Carnegie postoffice for the past three years, and for 23 years previous, acted in that same capacity in the Pittsburgh postoffice. He was a member of the National Association of Postal Supervisors, Branch No. 20, Postal Clerks Association, and a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Carnegie. He was graduated from Carnegie High School in 1903. He leaves his father; mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Smith Watson, two brothers, Dr. William S. Watson, of Pittsburgh, and Harry W. Watson, of Carnegie; and two sisters, Mrs. John W. Marsh, of Tomana, Fla., and Mrs. W. F. Hamstreet, of Titonka, Ia.

Thumm Funeral.

Funeral services for Albert C. Thumm, St. Petersburg, Fla., real estate man, and former Pittsburgher, who died yesterday in his home, 311 Stratford avenue, will be held at the T. B. Moreland funeral home, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, at 2 p. m. Monday. Before going to Florida several years ago he resided in Chicago. He was a graduate of the old Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh, and was a member of Masonic bodies of Chicago and Pittsburgh, and the First Lutheran Church, of Pittsburgh. Besides his widow he leaves three brothers and a sister.

Patrick J. Walsh.

Patrick J. Walsh, 58, of 5 Robinson street, for 27 years a member of the Pittsburgh Police Department, died yesterday in Mercy Hospital. He had been in the traffic division, stationed at Baum and Bigelow boulevards, for 15 years. He was a member of St. Agnes' Catholic Church, the Fraternal Order of Police and the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Besides his widow he leaves three sons, James, John and M. Regis Walsh; four daughters, Mrs. R. Schmitt, Mrs. J. F. McKnight and Catherine Walsh, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Walter Evans, of Youngstown, and two brothers and a sister.

Shaner Funeral.

Funeral services for Harry N. Shaner will be held tomorrow afternoon in the home of his sister, Mrs. Bertha Ferrar, 623 Farragut street. Mr. Shaner, who died yesterday morning, was born in Etna, and lived there until the death of his mother, seven months ago. He was a member of the German Lutheran Church of Etna. He leaves two brothers, Elmer and Samuel Shaner, and six sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Pflum, Mrs. Margaret Coyle, Mrs. Ida Bohr, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Maude Hanselman and Mrs. Ferrar.

Charles M. Routh

Charles M. Routh, formerly of Munhall, died yesterday at his home, 4025 Ludwick street. He was a graduate of the Engineering School of the University of Pittsburgh, and was employed by the Carnegie Steel Company. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ida Seibel Routh; a son, Charles, and two daughters, Miss Mary Rita Routh and Miss Ida Grace Routh.

Burke to Address Traffic Club Meet

James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican National Committee, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh Monday noon. The meeting will be held in the Cardinal Room of the William Penn Hotel.

SIX ARRESTED IN BOND PLOT

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2.—(AP.)—Weeks of careful investigation by government agents resulted in the arrest of seven men yesterday and frustration of what police said was a plan to swindle a group of wealthy businessmen out of $3,000,000.

Raymond E. Frost, 32, of Buffalo, was arrested in a hotel. Police said he had in his possession $10,000 in marked bills which had been used as a trap. Six alleged accomplices were arrested at the same time. Government agents said they would be charged with attempted grand larceny.

City detectives said that Frost persuaded a group of men to buy Liberty Bonds with a face value of $3,000,000 at a discount of 30 per cent. He represented these bonds, they said, as the "hidden assets" of a bankrupt in Pennsylvania who wanted to realize about $2,000,000 on his assets rather than turn them over to his creditors.

If such bonds exist, detectives said, Frost does not have them.

OFFICIALS LAUD TRADE SCHOOL

Management and labor joined in praising the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School at formal dedication ceremonies held yesterday in the school auditorium. I. Lamont Hughes, president, Carnegie Steel Company, and Philip Murray, international vice president, United Mine Workers of America, were the principal speakers.

Hughes said that many boys come to steel mills from college, with no idea of what they are to do, and that trade schools would be of great value in training men to do the thing they want to do, giving them a definite ambition.

Murray said:

"This building is a fine tribute to the foresight of an industrial genius in the field of education. This school marks another milestone in the progress of education."

Dr. Gerald D. Whitney, University of Pittsburgh, made the dedication of the Clifford B. Connelley testimonial tablet. Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Education, presided.

INTEREST RATE ACTION HELD UP

No action was taken on changing the rates of interest paid on savings accounts by local banks at the meeting of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association. Carl D. Fogle, secretary of the association, said another meeting may be held next week.

Local banks have had a reduction in interest under consideration since banks in other cities cut the rates paid on savings accounts several months ago.

Banks and trust companies, members of the Baltimore Clearing House, on June 1, will reduce interest rates on savings accounts from 4 to 3½ per cent, Waldo Newcomer, president, announced there yesterday.

Two Pedestrians Found Unconscious

Two men found unconscious in the street, were in hospitals today. Andrew McCarroll, 50, of 2349 Colorado street, was found unconscious at Irwin avenue and Brocket way, and taken to Allegheny General Hospital, where it was said he had suffered a possible fracture of the skull.

Frank Shall, 48, of 247 Greenfield avenue, was found on the Sylvan Avenue Bridge and taken to Homeopathic Hospital. He was believed to have fallen against a railing.

F. J. Broad Offers Land to Unemployed

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., May 2.—Fred J. Broad, who during the miners' strike saved the household effects of many miners by purchasing the furniture at constables' sales and returning it to the miners, has offered free to unemployed persons in the district his 40-acre tract in Parkview for gardening. The ground will be parceled out in plots of an acre or less.

Bequeaths Income To Japanese Girl He Adopted

MEDIA, Pa., May 2.—(AP.)—Fuji Hale Adamson, petite daughter of obscure Japanese parents, is given the income from $300,000 in the will of her foster father, William B. Adamson, probated here.

The 19-year-old Japanese girl is the daughter of Motogoro and Mitsu Hashimito, who were employed at the Adamson home at Haverford, Pa. She was adopted by Adamson, a retired businessman, in April, 1930, a few days after the will was written. The girl's parents returned to Japan in 1922.

If Miss Adamson dies without heirs, $100,000 of the trust fund is to go to her mother, Mrs. Hashimoto, the balance reverting to the Adamson estate.

SET WOODWARD RITES MONDAY

Funeral services for James F. Woodward, 63, secretary of internal affairs for the state of Pennsylvania for the last 12 years, who died at Harrisburg, Thursday, will be held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marvin W. Slone, 7022 Thomas boulevard, Monday at 2 p. m.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot and representatives from all state departments are expected to attend.

Mr. Woodward became superintendent of McKeesport Hospital in 1894, holding the post for 25 years, and was active in Republican party affairs throughout Western Pennsylvania for many years.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Isabelle Mawhinney Woodward; a daughter, Mrs. Slone; two sisters, Mrs. Grace W. Canfield, of Augusta, Me., and Miss Ruth H. Woodward, of Pittsburgh; two brothers, William Woodward, of Pittsburgh, and George H. Woodward, of Chicago, and two grandchildren. Burial will be in Versailles Cemetery, McKeesport.

TWO IN WHITNEY ROBBERY HELD

NEW YORK, May 2.—(INS.)—Mrs. Caspar Whitney, social and political leader, was listed today as one of the victims in a series of daring gem thefts. Two men were under arrest accused of robbing the Whitney home of $10,000 in gems.

Bandits also obtained $75,000 in uncut diamonds when they held up David Rothschild at his place of business, and the home of Robert R. Livington yielded $6,000 in jewels.

Fright resulting when he was held up was blamed for the death of Richard Dickson, 60, of White Plains, N. Y. He died shortly after he was found on top of an apartment building, his arms bound with radio wire and a rope around his body. He was believed robbed while collecting rents.

3 Death Suspects To Face Grand Jury

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 2.—Three Pittsburgh men, arrested for the shooting and killing of Frank J. McGreevy, road stand proprietor, near McKeesport, February 27, will have their cases placed before the grand jury at the May Criminal Court term here next week.

They are Paul E. Boggs, Russell Wentz and John Greenwald, all 25. They are serving penitentiary sentence for robbery after their arrest in Cambria County two weeks after the killing of McGreevy.

Lloyd George Denies Liberal-Labor Pact

SCARBOROUGH, Yorkshire, England, May 2.—(AP.)—Addressing an open-air meeting of this division's political campaign, David Lloyd George declared the Liberals had not pledged their support to keep the Labor government in office. He took issue with a letter to the Scarborough electorate from Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, and said Baldwin himself was responsible for the present government.

Pedestrian Injured In Boulevard Crash

Frank McBride, 48, of 4300 Summit street, was in Mercy Hospital today suffering from injuries as a result of being struck by an automobile in the 1200 block of Bigelow boulevard last night. George O'Brien, 46, of 255 Meyran avenue, alleged driver of the car, was held at Central Police Station on a reckless driving charge.

Bricklayers Win Increase in Wages

KANSAS CITY, May 2.—(AP.)—Kansas City union bricklayers have begun work under an increased wage scale. They will receive $1.62½ an hour instead of $1.50. Foremen will receive $1.75. The scale is to continue until April 1, 1932.

Escaped Murderer Evades Pursuers

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(INS.)—Oscar Pearson, 25, convicted killer of three men, who escaped from the "death row" of the state prison yesterday, was still at large today. It was believed the killer made his escape during visiting hours by donning civilian clothes.

Boy's Nose Fractured At Baseball Game

Paul Digman, 15, of 645 Davidson avenue, Lincoln Place, was struck on the nose by a ball while watching a baseball game at Homestead yesterday. He was taken to the Homestead Hospital suffering from a fractured nose and lacerations.

Scorpio Arrested After Hank Is Murdered

CHAPTER XXI.

A sensational melodramatic story of the underworld, adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture.

The ballistic room was dark when Hank entered it. He stumbled along the wall until he found the light switch. Quickly he seized the telephone and called a number.

"Simms?" he inquired. "I'm here in your ballistic room. Better come right down. I've got a big job for you. I'll wait."

Footsteps outside. Then the door was flung open and Hank looked up into the grinning face of Carl.

"Some pal," laughed Carl. "I even sent your poor old grandmother to heaven to save you tonight."

Hank smiled. "You can think faster than any human being I ever saw," he rejoined.

"All joking aside, Hank, you're taking chances. What were you doing there?"

Speaks About Anne

"Oh," evasively, "just meandering around."

Carl thought he had a lead. "You—were trying to see Anne?"

Hank seized upon this eagerly.

"That's it, Carl. I hadn't seen her since the split-up—heard she was up there."

"Then you still care for her?"

"Sure I do."

"Even after all you know?"

"It doesn't make much difference what a woman does. If you like her—well, that's that. You can forgive her anything and everything." With an unexpected change in his tone of voice, "Listen, Carl: if anything ever happened to me . . ."

"Hey! Quit hanging crepe!"

"Will you remember that I want you to do one thing for me?"

"Go ahead! Shoot!"

"Kind of keep an eye on Anne. She needs a friend, Carl. Poor kid. I went back on her at a time when she needed me."

Carl had got something of Hank's mood.

"Say, listen, old man, you'd better watch your step. Don't play around with Scorpio. He's a tough hombre. We fooled him tonight, but he's too smart to fool often. He'll be sending you a large floral piece if you don't watch out."

Hank was grinning.

Three others were also grinning, for at the window Scorpio and his two killers were watching and listening. Lady Luck had dealt them a lucky hand.

"I won't be playing grandmother's accompaniments on the harp for a long time yet, Carl," Hank insisted.

"Say, what are you doing here?" suddenly from Carl.

"I think I've got a hot lead. You'll be the first one to know." Then Hank paused to regard his friend sharply. "You've got something up your sleeve too, Carl. What is it?"

"Think so?"

"Sure. I know now they couldn't bribe a squareshooter like you. Come clean."

"You'll be the first one to know," said Carl laughing again. "Come on let's have a bowl of chilli."

"Can't . . for an hour. Simms is coming down. Now I want to ask you a favor, Carl. Go back and get Anne. Take her home. Please, kid."

Carl nodded. "O. K., Grandpa!" and left.

Hank turned to the table, on which ranged the ballistic expert's microscopes. Switching on the desk lights, he adjusted the apparatus, and inserted the bullets from the expert's cabinet.

Scorpio Kills Hank

Scorpio and his men watched curiously.

Hank set the microscope, peered through them, focused them.

Then from his pocket, he produced the silver-plated revolver of the gangster chief.

Scorpio's face distorted in a black frown.

Now he knew the reporter's racket!

Quickly he reached to Eddie's pocket and withdrew the man's revolver.

Slowly he raised it—and fired!

* * *

The solemn notes of the organ. The choir. A casket banked with flowers. Officers, with drawn swords, standing at attention.

Hank's army buddies and newspaper pals were bidding him farewell.

Pale, her eyes tragic but tearless, Anne sat immobile as an army chaplain intoned a prayer. Near her—his face drawn and tense with suffering, sat Carl.

At the end of the casket stood a huge floral piece.

"To my old pal, Hank, from Louis Scorpio."

Scorpio in his seat, gazed at the inscription and grinned. No one suspected him.

The service was coming to an end. He sat until the final "Amen" and rose from the seat.

"Well, boys, I'm all busted up," began the gangster.

"Yeah? Better come with us."

"What d'you mean—where's Newton?"

"He's outside — waiting for you." Handcuffs snapped on Scorpio's wrists.

As the solemn crowd shuffled out, Carl sought Anne.

"Salt of the earth — old Hank," he whispered to her, as she raised her tear-stained face to his. "Listen, Anne, I never knew how much you cared for Hank until the other night. Why not let our mutual love for Hank be a bond of friendship between us?"

Murderer Refused Bail

Gratefully she pressed his outstretched hand. As they walked silently arm and arm through the portals of the church, Carl leaned down to whisper to her:

"They've just arrested Scorpio."

"I know," with extreme caution so that no one could hear. "Scorpio killed him! I know it!"

"Listen, Anne, we've got enough evidence to hang Scorpio without you sacrificing yourself. Hank wouldn't want it."

Two officers were swinging past.

"Oh, Haggerty," Carl called to one of them. "Just a moment, please. This is Miss Anne Courtland." The smile on the cop's face told that he knew all about her. "I would like to have you see her home. Keep an eye on her. Get me?"

Haggerty nodded.

"Sure, Carl. I get you."

"Goodbye, Anne, take care of yourself."

Lurking in the shadows of the church three men had seen and overheard. They were three of Scorpio's mob.

"Wait till the boss hears this," said one of them, a vicious smile twisting one corner of his mouth.

* * *

The desk-sergeant glanced up as Scorpio was led in. Scorpio grinned at him.

"Hello, Jim," he remarked.

"Hello, Mr. Scorpio. You don't have to give me your record. I know it."

Scorpio grinned again.

But the grin ended quickly at the next words.

"No bail."

"What do you mean?" sharply.

Down a corridor, flanked with barred doors, Scorpio was led. Prisoners in cells looked up from the midday meal to eye the new prisoner. A door clanged metallically.

"In here."

The turnkey half shoved Scorpio into a cell. Its door reverberated.

He whirled and looked across the corridor. Scorpio's eyes followed.

A blinding light shone on a white face, as a curtain, in front of the barred door across the way, was raised.

Metz Talks

The face was that of Metz, the dummy.

Under the burning lights the gangster writhed in agony. Burly detectives stood over him. Then out of the shadows appeared Donlin and the district attorney.

"Look across the hall and see your old friend, Scorpio," said Donlin. "Yes, we've got him, too."

Metz strained forward, trying to peer through the blinding, torturing spotlight.

"You'd better talk before Scorpio does. You might help to stretch his neck—and save your own." Almost as if he heard, the dummy's hand clutched his own throat. He was breathing heavily now, gasping for air, his breath making a rasping sound.

"You're not a deaf-mute. We know that, Metz. That's why we've been talking to you. Three days and three nights. And we'll keep on talking, Metz, until you answer us. Yes, we know you can answer us, Metz."

A strange whimpering sound came through Metz's clenched teeth and swollen lips.

"You remember Delano. The wop who was supposed to have killed Johnny Franks?" There was a drone to Donlin's voice. "He died of T. B. in the pen last week. He swore he never killed Johnny Franks . . . that Newton framed him."

Another moan from Metz.

One of the men glanced at his watch. It wouldn't be long now.

Metz's hands tore at his white, dripping face. His eyes seemed to be staring from their sockets. The faces round him whirled like a kaleidoscope of masks . . . eyes staring at him . . . . and droning, terrible voices.

Suddenly a piercing scream filled the room, followed by sobs that were like the cries of an animal in pain.

"Stop! Stop!" screamed Metz. "I can't stand it any longer! Take me out of here! I'll talk! I'll talk!"

Across the hall Scorpio could hear the muffled screams.

"Newton!" he gasped and sagged against the iron bars that were holding him as in a vise.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Use Your Bean

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Egotistical Detective Is Discharged by Chief

Shelia James liked her new position with the Phoenix Detective Agency.

She liked to feel that she was trusted, that she knew many important secrets which, if divulged, would create a flock of sensations.

Shelia liked Chief Brine, he was thoughtful, pleasant and paid her a good salary.

As for Dan Riorden, Shelia didn't like him—she loved him. It was Dan who got her the position with Mr. Brine, owner of the agency.

In fact Shelia liked everything about it with one exception—she was beginning to detest Joe Carlton.

Carlton was a detective, like Dan, only he had been with the concern much longer than Dan. He was somewhat older. That wasn't the trouble. Carlton was jealous of Dan and went out of his way to belittle whatever Dan did.

Shelia Furious

Shelia wanted Dan to succeed, just as Dan wanted to succeed, because his success would mean that he would be given charge of the Chicago branch of this concern and Shelia and Dan were natives of Chicago.

To marry Dan, to have him hold a splendid position back in Chicago, was Shelia's idea of the very best thing that could happen.

There was the Worden case. Dan worked it up himself and at the last minute he had to jump up to Boston for Chief Brine. Brine had told him to give Carlton whatever he had on the Worden case. Dan had "everything." He told Carlton and jumped to Boston.

Carlton had no difficulty in getting Worden and his crowd after that. And Shelia heard Carlton saying to Chief Brine:

"That was a tough case, chief. Riordan hadn't a line on any of them when he left. I jumped in and used my bean."

And so Carlton got a great deal of credit for it.

The truth was, as Shelia well knew, when Dan left there was nothing to do except to wait until the next Thursday when Worden would return and make the pinch.

Shelia was quite furious about it and strongly tempted to go in to Chief Brine and tell him that Dan had done all of the real work. But she hadn't been there long, for one thing, and they—Dan and Shelia—thought it best not to have the chief or others in the office know that they intended to be married as soon as possible—"possible" meaning the time Dan got promoted to head the Chicago agency.

Be sure that, when Dan returned, Shelia told him all about it.

"That was right, hon, not to tell the Chief about it. And now I can't tell him directly or he will want to know how I knew what Carlton said to him. That would get him to thinking that you ran and tattled everything."

"We'll do the best we can," Dan promised.

At the time they were trying to find Spug Morley, solely to use him as a witness in an accident case. Dan was sent out after him, as was Carlton. Spug was a crook and fighting shy of the law in any form. His friends tipped him that the Phoenix Detective Agency men were after him, and he didn't propose to be caught and held as a witness, even if it meant no particular harm to him.

Spug would never admit that he was caught while trying to rob Carlton, he (Carlton) felt sure.

Supplies Information

When Mrs. Chester's strongbox at her summer place was robbed of jewels, Mrs. Chester was about ready to collapse. She did not report it to the police for obvious reasons. She went to the office of the Phoenix Detective agency and told Chief Brine all about it.

"It wasn't so much the jewels, Mr. Brine," Mrs. Chester said, almost tearfully, "I know that when I was robbed before your men got both my jewels and the robber. This time, while I'd like my jewels back, I will pay double for some letters that were stolen with them."

"Double?" Brine wisely asked, rather than question her with any show of eagerness about the letters.

"Double the price of the jewels. You see— well—I had been rather indiscreet, and the letters would make no end of trouble for me and others."

Mrs. Chester, a rather dashing widow of great fortune, flushed in an embarrassed manner.

"The letters," she went on, "were written by ——"

She leaned forward and whispered a name. Even Chief Brine was surprised.

"It would mean divorce, naming me, and—oh, well I simply must have those letters."

Brine questioned her. He even went out and looked over the room himself and assured her that it was an inside job.

Of his big staff of detectives, Brine selected Carlton and Dan to work on this. And Shelia was troubled over it.

Anxious About Case

Brine gave them all of his information. She took down all he said to type it and give a copy to each man.

Dan was anxious about this case.

Evidently Carlton was equally anxious. He, too, would like to be manager of the Chicago agency, with about double his present salary.

"Don't worry, Chief," Carlton said, "this is going to be cleared up. It's just a matter of using your bean, and you know I've been doing that plenty of late. I'll clear it up for you."

Shelia's cheeks burned with anger to hear Carlton boast like this. She glanced timidly at Dan. Dan was quite calm about it, and made no comment.

When Shelia saw Dan that night she was greatly worried.

"Carlton's shoving himself ahead, Dan. Did you hear the way he said, 'I'll clean this up,' just as though you weren't on the case, or didn't count at all—did you get that, Dan?"

"Sure I got it."

"Why didn't you say something, suggest something? You're a good detective; you could think of some plans."

"Sure could—and did. Why tell them to the Chief when Carlton could hear them and take advantage of them? He'd be saying they were his own plans."

So they went to work.

Carlton had a hunch to hang around employment agencies, because this chauffeur, John Barker, wouldn't be sap enough to blow the money he might get from the stolen jewels right away, but would cover up by looking for a new job.

Dan figured differently. He went out to Mrs. Carter's country place and found out all that he could about Barker.

Gets Suspect's Picture

Dan rummaged through the room in the servants' quarters where Baker had slept and finally located a letter from a girl. He trailed the girl. She didn't know where Barker was, they hadn't gone together very long. Dan posed as a lawyer trying to locate Barker and turn over a big estate that had been left to him. The girl gave him a picture of Barker, a tintype they had taken together down at Coney Island.

The girl gave him some other information.

Dan showed Chief Brine the picture of Barker and Carlton was called in to get a good look at it to aid him. Carlton began to laugh.

"Use your bean, Dan," he sneered, "use your bean. This guy has a big liver spot on his right cheeck, it would take black in a picture—this bird's face in the picture is clear as a kid's on the right side."

"Perhaps," Dan said, in an embarrassed manner.

"No perhaps about it, Dan—you're dumb, you'll never be a real detective."

Dan went out. He hadn't given up all of his information. Two days later he returned with all of Mrs. Carter's jewels except one ring Barker sold. He also had every one of the missing and incriminating letters.

"I gave him his choice of doing time or coming across, I let him go," Dan explained. "And, you were wrong, Carlton, that was a picture of him, he has the big spot on his right cheek."

"But it couldn't be——"

"Use your bean," Dan said, "this picture was a tintype and tintypes reverse you. That's the left side, see the flower in his buttonhole? All tintypes make your right side look to be on your left."

"And what's more, Carlton," Chief Brine said, "I found out the truth about the Worden case and the Spug Morley case. Use your bean, as you say so often, but use it for some other company."

After Carlton was gone Dan said to the Chief, in the presence of Shelia. "It is Miss James who deserves the credit, she tipped me that anything on the right side of a person would look to be on the left side and——"

"Hush, Dan," Shelia said, blushing.

Chief Brine, who was as keen a reader of humanity as he was big hearted, said to Dan, "My boy, use your bean, marry this girl and take her to Chicago with you when you go to manage the new agency."

"Members of San Francisco's police department are to study oratory in the public schools under orders from Chief of Police Quinn, who believes considerable benefit will result from improving the poise of the city's policemen and their mode of addressing the public."

So in the course of time maybe we'll hear something like this after pulling over to the curb:

"Unaccustomed as I am to dealing with criminals, I feel, fellow citizen, that I have a message for you. However, before we touch on this matter, the importance of which I trust you will not doubt, I must ask you a question. Just where is the fire? Now, to make a long story short, I would like to outline for your benefit some of the circumstances and conditions under which we drive upon the public highway and touch upon a few of the problems we must take into consideration when so doing. It is my belief, and that of every sensible person, I am sure you will agree, that these streets, constructed at the expense of the taxpayers and kept in condition by the municipal department organized for that purpose, are for the use of all the people. However, even in our fair city it is a platitude, I believe, that there are certain undesirables who, by their reckless wanton and destructive acts upon these streets, make it desirable that they be dealt with in no uncertain manner. . . .and if you have anything to say in rebuttal, expatiate to the judiciary."

Roads and Farm Values

Township Highway Improvement Program Estimated to Increase Agricultural Land Values by Forty Millions.

An approximate increase of $40,000,000 in farm land values is estimated by Fred A. Fichtel, president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, if the Pinchot administration carries out its proposed program of township highway improvement, according to an article in the May issue of the Pennsylvania Motorist. The estimate may be more roseate than accurate. Farm values in this and other states have been decreasing despite highway improvements. Yet without good roads the decline may have been greater. Nevertheless, the good-roads program should be followed. The value to the state at large cannot be estimated, for it is of benefit to thousands of others besides those whose property is fronted by a hard road.

On Monday the blue law is to face another deter- mined legislative attack from those who vision possibility of the first breach in the act of 1794, which for years has been too restrictive for a modern people. The Schwartz bill, amended to permit the playing of baseball Sunday afternoons, will come up for final passage in the House. Twenty of the Allegheny County delegation have been recorded in favor of the measure, six opposed and one absent. For the guidance of the six, it is stated again that the sentiment of the county is overwhelmingly in favor of modification of the blue law, even to the extent of its outright repeal.

It is estimated that "moving day," traditionally May 1, but actually several days approximating that date, was 25 per cent less busy than in preceding years. Reductions in rentals and fewer removals of families into purchased homes is assigned as a cause. Perhaps, too, there has been a reversal of the old belief that "it is cheaper to move than pay rent." Moving costs have mounted in a few years. And maybe householders are mindful of another old maxim, "three movings are as bad as a fire," the reference being as to the effect on furnishings.

City Controller Kerr is wondering if he can collect for the city about $350,000 for water said to have flowed from city mains into private lines on Herrs Island without having been metered. Even though the consumers possibly have benefited unintentionally, this is one water leak that should be repaired speedily.

The prospect of delay in the delivery of the first allotment of vote machines ordered by the county has a familiar appearance. "Mass production," it is promised, now will begin in about two weeks, and an officer of the company receiving the contract has stated that 1,000 machines will have been delivered to the county by August 15. By then we shall know whether or not the commissioners were wise in awarding a contract as important as this for a machine that appears almost to be actually "on the market."

Pittsburgh now is on the aerial map in a big way. Yesterday a daily service between this city and New York, four trips daily on a schedule of approximately two hours between the two cities, was begun. At the same time the local company that inaugurated such service also opened one between Pittsburgh and Buffalo. A few hours later the first plane in the new service between New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago flew from Bettis Field. Friday indeed was a day of pride for Pittsburgh.

May Day, despite efforts to make it significant, still is only the first of May as far as Pittsburgh is concerned. Abroad it is a sort of labor day with radical trimmings that often lead to serious conflicts without benefiting the cause of the "proletariat." Here the worker refuses to demean himself by such a classification. Consequently he did not get excited about May Day locally, although there was a slight gesture toward observance of its meaning.

Joseph G. Armstrong—"Joe" to his numerous friends—is assured by District Attorney Andrew T. Park that he will support him for re-election as County Commissioner. Furthermore, he told Mr. Armstrong, at a political dinner in his honor, that the 70 employes of his department are "working" for him. If that sentiment prevails throughout the county building, it is quite evident that Mr. Armstrong carries it unanimously. Which may or may not be complimentary to "Joe." However highly we may regard the dean of our politicians, such unanimity does cause misgiving through its indication of a "bossed" group of public servants.

The effort to raise $3,000,000 for the purpose of carrying out the Pittsburgh Plan for the relief of unemployment continues, the grand total having been close to $1,200,000 at the last report. Carry on! Every day is a day nearer the turn in the road.

There has been less talk about getting "air- minded" than there was two years ago, but real progress is being made in the development of aviation. The airplane is becoming just another means of transportation. Its days as a thriller are over. This means that aviation is about to take its real place in modern life.

The Department of Commerce says that 2,715,846 passengers were taken up by established aviation companies last year. Of these 417,505 flew over scheduled routes. Most of the remaining flights were made by sightseers.

The Boy Scouts of this city have been doing a val- uable work in assisting in making of traffic surveys, the results of which have helped to solve some of the knotty problems in handling the movement of automobiles and street cars in the triangle. On May 21 more than 900 Scouts will make another traffic count. They deserve a public vote of thanks.

A candid and rather gloomy opinion of American business men was expressed by Joseph H. Willits, professor of industry of the University of Pennsylvania, before the United States Chamber of Commerce. He declared that not more than 10 per cent of business men are socially minded enough to carry out unemployment plans without superior direction. He added that only 40 per cent are blessed with shrewd common sense and the remaining 50 per cent are of mediocre caliber.

Prof. Willits praised a few companies which have made progress in solving the problem of unemployment but he believes that business in general is unable to provide against a repetition of the present state of suffering. He proposes a national planning body to take business by the ear and show it what to do.

The Staff of Love

The Road to Ruin is paved with "Never agains."

* * *

At this mellow season it is somehow necessary for even the most hard-boiled business man to remind himself, several times a day, that his pretty stenographer is "just a part of the office machinery."

* * *

Many a man who couldn't be coaxed into marriage by a hesitating angel, has been rushed into it by an enterprising little dumbbell.

This is the time of year, when even the most efficient modern girl has her weaker moments, when she secretly longs to be just a "useless ornament" in some man's life.

* * *

The average man seems to think that "confessing" a fault turns it into a virtue, for which he ought to receive a Sunday school medal, or, at least, a little invisible pair of wings, and a big slice of the fatted calf.

* * *

Nothing so terrifies a modern Lothario as the thought of being tied for life to some woman who will "understand" him.

The chief difference between the old-fashioned girl and the modern girl is that the former tried to look astonished when a man kissed her, while the latter tries NOT to look astonished, when he doesn't kiss her.

* * *

The modern man's heart is like the cups and plates in a dairy-lunch—slightly battered and chipped and worse for wear, but practically non-breakable.

A reformer is a person who has mistaken his liver for his conscience, his dyspepsia for his religion, and his prejudices for his politics.

Isn't It So?

They would put some of us in jail if we loved our neighbors with the fervor we do ourselves.

The bald-headed man never is subjected to a hair-pulling by his wife, but sometimes his ears are yanked.

Many a signal that is given is never understood.

There is always some one around to second any motion.

The right kind of friendship is as sturdy as a battleship.

A soft answer doesn't always turn away the hard luck story.

WHY THE UNIVERSE EXPANDS

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most signal discoveries of recent times is the fact that the universe is not static, but in a state of unstable equilibrium. Conditions are such that, even were the universe in equilibrium at any given time, it could not remain so. It would have either to expand or to contract.

As matters now stand, it is clear that the universe is expanding. The great extragalactic systems, the mighty spiral nebulae, which constitute island universes, are receding from us at enormously high velocities. The observers on any extragalactic system, assuming that they are inhabited and have high-powered telescopes, observe that all the other systems are receding from them. The whole universe thus seems to be flying apart, and thus ever growing larger.

We know, on the basis of Le Maitre's theory and observations on extragalactic systems, both the present state of the universe and its present rate of change. But we have no information as to the rate at which the universe has been changing in the past, and the variations in this rate of change.

Various possibilities throng the imagination. Has it taken an infinite time for the universe to get started on its career of expansion? Perhaps the universe started with an excessively great, or as we say, infinite size and during a very great time contracted to a minimum value, and then subsequently increased to the present size. It is also possible, though not highly probable, that the evolution started from an infinitely small radius, finally reaching its present size. It appears that the time scale we have to go by, unfortunately, is only a few thousand million years.

Why is it that the universe expands? Consider the sun, for example. We know that the sun, as the result of its powerful radiation, is losing all the time enormously in bulk. On the basis of modern radiation theories and Einstein's relativistic conceptions, Eddington has computed that the sun is losing one hundred and twenty billion tons of its mass every year. The same, in more or less degree, is true of all the celestial objects, in particular of the billions of suns and other hot bodies in the universe, passing into the inter-stellar spaces in radiation, is constantly decreasing.

Moreover, the matter in the universe is constantly spreading itself further and further apart. As the sun loses weight, its gravitational grip on the planets continually weakens.

The stars likewise are held together by mutual gravitational attractions. These forces diminish with the reduction of the weight of the stars; and as the result of radiation, the aggregation of stars steadily expands. The stars progressively weaken in weight, grow feeble and scatter further apart.

As Jeans puts it, the material universe appears to be passing away like a tale that is told, dissolving into nothingness like a vision. The human race, whose intelligence dates back only a single tick of the astronomical clock, could hardly hope to understand so soon what it all means. Some day, perhaps, we shall know; at present we can only wonder.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The Ladybirds' Husbands are planning a club—

A CLUB WHERE THEY CAN GET TOGETHER AND BOAST ABOUT THEIR WIVES.

George Palmer Putnam, husband of Amelia Earhart, and Herbert V. Thaden, husband of Louise Thaden, are talking it over and drawing up a list of possible members. There's Walter Camp, Jr., for instance, whose wife is Ruth Elder. And the gentleman who is Mr. Florence Lowe Barnes. And they all think they're going to have a Perfectly Lovely Time talking about what a Wonderful Girl the Missis is.

But will they?

I doubt it. And I've reasons. Odd moments, I run a letter column as well as this one. Answers to real letters from all over the country. Letters from Boy Friends and Sweeties about love...letters from husbands and wives about the consequences of love. Just as many letters from husbands as from wives. All making it painfully plain that the main consequence of modern love is A Row.

Now there's nothing new about marital rows in general. They've been going on since civilization was a pup. But there's something decidedly new about these twentieth century rows. The great majority of them are no longer based on that time-honored motif . . . Your Folks 'n' My Folks . . . or The Price of the New Spring Bonnet . . . or Shall Little Willie Be Spanked . . . or other simple problems which raised Cain in Gramma's time. Most of them are based on JOBS. THE MISSIS' JOB. Whether or not the Missis should have a job. Whether or not she can take care of her home if she does have a job. What'll happen to the Mister if the Missis does grab a job. Dozens of angles to this one debate, but through every discussion, one theme song—

JEALOUSY.

Does Papa Love Mamma? Yes, maybe. But his love experiences an awful chill when Mamma's pay check looms larger than his, or when Mamma's name figures bigger in the local Who's Who.

YOU CAN PRETTY SAFELY BET THAT, FOR EVERY SUCCESSFUL MAMMA, THERE'S A SULKY PAPA.

And can you blame him? Since Adam tilled the first field and left the Dear Little Woman at Home Where She Belonged, gentlemen have been expected to be Go-Getters and ladies have been expected to be Stay-Putters. And a man won his rating by the the quantity and quality of his Go-Getting. Maybe he had a noble soul even if he couldn't earn the price of beans, but the local Chamber of Commerce didn't give a hoot about that. They judged by RESULTS. And a citizen was as big as his pay check. So naturally if was pretty tough on Jones if Brown outfinanced him.....but, it was all between men.

But now comes Missis Jones with a pay check bigger than the Old Man's—

Or, if it isn't a pay check, it's a seat in Congress, or a contract with Hollywood, or a record as a best seller, high diver or transcontinental flier—

In which case, how's papa going to feel?

Is he going to call in the other Lesser Halves and have a nice, cozy time boasting about the Dear Girl who has made him look like a plugged nickle?

Wise Words

The little mind who loves itself, will write and think with the vulgar; but the great mind will be bravely eccentric, and scorn the beaten road, from universal benevolence.—Goldsmith.

It is said that jealousy is love, but I deny it: for though jealousy be produced by love, as ashes are by fire, yet jealousy extinguishes love as ashes smother the flame.—De Navarre.

Receive not satisfaction for premeditated impertinence, forget it—forgive—but keep him inexorably at a distance who offered it.—Lavater.

That laughter costs too much, which is purchased by the sacrifice of decency and propriety.—Quintillian.

Mutability of temper and inconsistency with ourselves is the greatest weakness of human nature.—Addison.

Though a taste of pleasure may quicken the relish of life, an unrestrained indulgence leads to inevitable destruction.—Dodsley.

The dew waits for no voice to call it to the sun.—Parker.

Trust Tomorrow

Trust tomorrow! Never fear
Any shadow drawing near.
All along your changeful way
Strength was granted for each day;
Though to some you looked with dread,
At their dawn your doubting fled.

Trust tomorrow, it may bring
Gifts to make your spirit sing;
It may open vistas new
Full of cheer and joy for you.
Better things than you have known
In the seasons that have flown.

Little faith and less of hope
Seem our portion as we grope
Into regions new and strange
With time's ceaseless round of change.
Trust tomorrow; it will be
Not too hard for you or me!

Strange 'Religious Picture'

It Is Not the Old Idea of Religion.

'MY LORD I MEET IN EVERY LONDON LANE AND STREET'

In London's Royal Academy exhibition of paintings one year ago the great sensation was a picture by Mr. Mark Symons, which had for its title "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

Above is a small section of a painting that Mr. Mark Symons sends to this year's Royal Academy, that also promises to create a sensation. For a title he uses a line from a poem by Richard le Gallienne, "My Lord I Meet in Every London Lane and Street."

The painting shows the Saviour returned to earth in a city of modern times, with men, women and children about Him in modern clothing, engaged in everyday tasks.

A steam roller (not seen in this part of the picture) stands on one side, a sick child is being carried from an automobile to be healed. A little girl stops her bicycle to look on.

A modern young man on the left, with hand outstretched, is asking, "What can I do to be perfect?"

The modern employer would say to him, "Stand up straight and change the shape of your head." But the poor creature knows that he will find only kindness in his present appeal.

Many, seeing the picture of Christ returning to a modern city street, with shops, hats and dresses in the windows, workmen busy, digging up water pipes, and all the rest of it, will feel that the surroundings are not appropriate.

The fact that St. Peter and St. John are shown among those surrounding the Lord does not take away from the strangely depressing effect of the whole picture. Yet to such surroundings He must come in the second advent.

Mr. Symons, the artist, says he shows people at their tasks in everyday clothes "because I understand modern clothes."

A child on the ground is taking off her shoes, "as a symbol of following Him." The picture is striking, strange; crowds will stand before it.

But its whole effect is unpleasant, depressing.

You feel that modern surroundings and modern human beings are unworthy of the presence of Him who came to save the world so long ago.

Essentials in a great religious picture are deep faith and intense reverence.

The simplest of the "primitive" pictures, painted long ago by men of simple mind and skill, is more valuable than the most sophisticated modern work of art.

The old painter BELIEVED what he painted. His own heart suffered as he showed the bleeding heart of Christ. The modern painter produces a sophisticated picture, appealing to sophisticated men and women. He adds nothing to art or to the power of religion.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 2.—This is how it came about. At dinner my wife suddenly exclaimed: "Let's go picnicking tomorrow!" Impulsively I clapped hands and cried: "Lets." And with my flair for getting off perfectly killing things, added: "I used to pick a mean nick."

In days along the Ohio River I was quite a boy on outings—skinning the cat, imitating the Robinson Circus clowns' falsetto and slipping a jelly tart under Mr. C. Fred Henking as he sat down in white duck pants. It's a wonder I didn't wind up in vaudeville.

We were awake half the night planning the lunch and up at daylight quite jittery over the jaunt. In the ecstasy of delirium I phoned Rube Goldberg to join us. And that swish was a bucket of cold water! "What are you doing—teething?" he sneered. "Picnics are for children."

Anyway, we took off by motor just as New York's army of slaves were trudging to back-breaking toil. My wife and I and the two dogs, the dogs' tongues panting and rosy from excitement. Anyone would know at a glance it was their first picnic.

After a glide—I always felt like a greased pig going through a Childs' restaurant there—into the Hudson tunnel and spinning through a village or so, we burst the splendor of the open countryside. Wild geraniums spangled green thickets and luminous plumed birds wheeled skyward, full throated with song. It was grand.

* * *

The winey tang to the air quickly radiated a hunger and by 11 o'clock I began to think of those deviled eggs impaled on toothpicks, the imported sardines from that new British shop on upper Madison avenue, the jar of apple jelly from sister Katie, curlings from port-soaked Stilton cheese Richmond Temple sent from London, and the thermos of chilled fresh milk. "How would you like to eat?" I suggested. "Meaning, of course, we eat," replied my wife, who had apparently not sopped up much of the cheerful sunshine. Then: "Where did you put the lunch?"

* * *

In a flash I saw a perfectly wonderful picnic taking a hurried bow. I forgot the food. "Where did I put it?" I inquired with feigned astonishment. "You heard me," with a deadly calm. I remembered vaguely promising to store it up front with the chauffeur. But not having picnicked for more than 20 years, a guy cannot remember everything. Anyway, I haven't been so well lately. I'm taking pills right now. (Three miles in a thick silence.)

* * *

Meekly from me: "We might stop at one of these clean little roadside stands and pick up something." Then with a quick brightness: "Or perhaps pluck a few gooseberries." After an interval: "You may if you like." (Three more miles in thicker silence.) And what got me was the way Fred, the chauffeur, sat there like a frozen-faced statue. With me out on the end of a limb that way he might have done something to ease the strain.

* * *

All the while I was getting hotter and hungrier. And when I'm hot and hungry I break out in a fiery rash of little red dots. My wife by contrast in such emergencies grows pale and glacial. In a spell of self-pity I finally blubbered: "About all I get out of this happy outing, in both quotes and italics, is to be treated like a stepchild." Glancing at my fact, she affirmed indifferently: "That—(stifling a yawn)—and an elegant helping of prickly heat."

* * *

We circled back to New York without stopping from the car. My wife and her mother are having a grand spread with the lunch in the other room. I'm in a full-blown pout and won't eat. But, O, boy, what I could do to a setting of those deviled eggs!
